Stock Car Racing Proposal Draws Opposition at Hearing

Damage to Stadium Is Theme Stressed —Would Be Insured

Argument at last night's public hearing weighed against stock car races on the municipal stadium grounds.

The session which attracted 80 persons to the Common Council chamber, city hall, ended with only shy batting for the petitioner, the Kingston Baseball Club Inc., which seeks to get out of debt through promotion of the races.

Herbert C. Myers, of 365 East Chester street, a member of the club, who said before the hearing that he did not intend to talk, took up the case of the petitioner only after the request of Alderman Robert C. Cullum, chairman of the council's building and supply committee, to hear "those in favor" was followed by a long silence.

To Get Out of Red

Myers said that if the public did not want the races in the stadium,

Delaney Sentenced And Fined $10,500

Terms of Two Years Each Given on Counts in Indictment

Boston, Jan. 29 (AP)—Denis W. Delaney collector of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts, was sentenced today to two years' imprisonment and fined $10,500 on convictions of receiving $75,000 in bribes and falsifying that $180,000 in tax liens had been satisfied.

Federal Judge Charles E. Wyzanski Jr., sentenced Delaney to two years in prison on each of three counts in an indictment which charged he received $7,500 to influence tax decisions. The court ordered that the terms be served concurrently.

He also fined Delaney $2,500 on each count—the amounts he was accused of soliciting and receiving.

Also Disqualified

The sentence also included disqualification of Delaney to "hold any position of honor and profit" in the United States government.

Judge Wyzanski said he had no alternative but to pronounce sentence on a second indictment under which Delaney was convicted in three counts of falsifying tax liens, although he said to Delaney:

"In my view it is quite different and shows you received no advantage of any kind for signing these false certificates or that the government was damaged in any way."

He went on to fine Delaney the minimum of $1,000 on each of these three counts and to sentence him to six months on each count, the sentences to be served concurrently with the other sentences.

He then suspended the six months' sentences.

May Check Violence

Tunis, Tunisia, Jan. 29 (AP)—French Resident General Jean de Hautecloque said today new talks with Nationalist minded Tunisians may head off further violence in this uneasy French North African protectorate. He has a note from the French cabinet to be delivered to the Bey of Tunis, which is believed to show moderation in the French attitude toward Tunisia's demands for independence. The nation was calm today. A general strike, in effect since Jan. 18, ended yesterday on order of the Nationalist Neo-Destour Party. However, the party announced the strike would be resumed for one day on Friday. Police and soldiers continued to round up Nationalists suspected of carrying guns and being involved in the recent bloody rioting.

Asks Poll Be Taken

Port Jervis, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Wilson C. Van Duzer, Republican assemblyman from Orange county's first district, wants a county-wide poll taken on the question of repeal of the state law banning sale of colored oleomargarine. Van Duzer, who has announced he was opposed to repeal, sent a telegram today to Charles E. Dusenberry, Orange county clerk and chairman of the Republican County Committee, requesting such a poll. A bill for repeal of the ban on colored oleomargarine has been introduced in the present session of the state Legislature.

State Senate Passes Dope Bill

Would Send Teen-Age Drug Addicts Away for Treatment, but Without Any Stigma

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP) — Compulsory commitment of teen-age drug addicts to institutions for treatment and rehabilitation, "without criminal stigma," was headed today for final legislative approval in the Assembly.

The measure — first in the Dewey administration's drastic anti-narcotics program — was passed unanimously last night by the Senate.

The Senate also voted to extend Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein's special narcotics probe for another year, until Jan. 31, 1953.

However, the Senate deferred action on two other anti-narcotics bills.

One would provide a maximum life sentence for third-offender dope peddlers. The other would authorize an extensive educational program in the schools and among the public on the degrading effects of narcotics.

The bills were deferred at the request of Democratic Senator Arthur Wachtel of the Bronx.

Wachtel said he wanted time to prepare an amendment that would make the maximum life sentence apply to second offenders. He said the life term for third offenders did not go far enough.

"I believe it should apply to second offenders,' he said. "Let's get a law with some teeth."

In addition to the bills laid aside last night, the Senate also is expected to act on two other narcotics bills.

The first would ban the sale of hypodermic needles by drugstores and other retail outlets without doctors' prescriptions.

The other would eliminate a judge's power to suspend sentence on repeated narcotics offenders.

Two other narcotics bills are awaiting approval by the Senate Finance Committee.

They would permit the seizure of any car or vessel used in illicit drug traffic; compel all persons found in an automobile with a dope peddler to "answer for" their activities, and reduce the amount of dope required to establish possession with intent to sell.

Five More Bodies Found in Cairo, Total 67 As Result of Weekend Rioting; Hotel Burns

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 29 (AP)—Five more bodies were found in the ruins of the British Turf Club and Shepheards Hotel today, high police sources said, bringing to at least 67 the total dead in Saturday's rioting and burning by mobs.

Fire brigades still played hoses on smouldering ruins of some fires. Flames still were flaring from Shepheard's.

There were no reports yet that any Americans were casualties, but U. S. Consul General Lamar Mulliner said he was checking further with Egyptian authorities, airlines and hotel officials to find out whether any Americans besides those who have already reported to him may have been in the famed hotel.

Business sources estimated the fire losses at more than 100 million pounds (288 million dollars).

Cairo, still under martial law, was quiet.

Strong squads of soldiers and police kept up a patrol of the streets, where charred debris from the dozens of fires still lay untouched. Barbed wire barriers kept crowds back from major damage areas. Tanks and armored cars patrolled the streets.

Last night's 9 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew was effective everywhere. Only a few whose work made it necessary for them to be on the streets during the night were given passes.

Leading newspapers meanwhile underlined the view that Egypt's new Premier Aly Maher Pasha will keep majority support in Parliament only if he follows up the old government's widely popular drive to oust British troops from the Suez and unite the Sudan with Egypt.

Al Misri, paper of the Wafd party, said the Wald majority which dominates Parliament will decide its future attitude toward Maher Pasha's military government "in the light of Egypt's national demands."

Parliament approved the new non-party cabinet last night with only one dissenting ballot and voted to keep martial law in force for the next two months.

Malik Charges American Buildup of Chinese Nationalists in Burma for Aggression

Appeal Was Made

Burma Asked Assistance to Rid Country of Nationalists

Paris, Jan. 29 (AP)—With almost half the member nations declining to vote, the United Nations political committee today condemned the Soviet Union as having failed to honor its 1945 treaty of friendship with the Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The vote, 24 to 9, with 25 abstentions, came shortly after Soviet delegate Jacob A. Malik charged that under the direction of two American generals there is being built up in Burma a Chinese Nationalist "shock force, armed to the teeth, which at any moment can provoke aggression." The U. S. has repeatedly denied similar charges raised by the Chinese Reds. Before Malik spoke the U. S. again had rejected such charges and implied it would not aid the Chinese Nationalists in Burma.

Malik said seven American colonels and 27 American majors were attached to the Chinese Nationalist troops which took refuge in Burma from Yunnan province after the fall of the Nationalists. The Soviet delegate, addressing the political committee, did not identify the generals or the other officers.

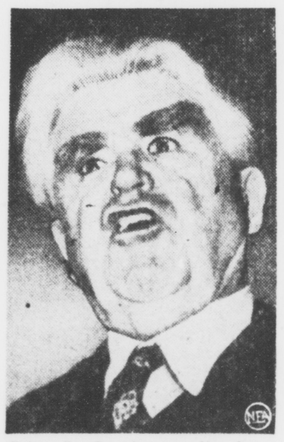

Peiping Makes Charge

The Chinese Communist radio at Peiping made an almost identical charge Dec. 26. It accused the U. S. 7th Fleet of ferrying 70,000 Chinese Nationalists to Thailand for activity on the north Burma frontier against Chinese Reds. At that time Peiping said two American generals were at the head of such an operation.

Communists Reject Allied Exchange Plan—Agree to Points

Munsan, Korea, Jan. 29 (AP)—The Communists hinted today that Red China would wash its hands of direct participation in administering a Korean armistice.

The hint was cryptic and indirect. It came during a meeting of staff officers on truce supervision at which the UN command reported "progress was being made."

In another truce meeting, however, Reds flatly rejected an allied plan for exchanging prisoners. The Communists were promptly told they "must contribute something" if an agreement is to be reached.

The Chinese hands-off hint was made by a North Korean during discussion of an 18-page UN program for supervising the truce. The allied plan provided that civil administration of the Red half of a demilitarized zone would "be the joint responsibility of the supreme commander of the Korean Peoples Army and the commander of the Chinese People's Volunteers."

Asks Words Be Stricken

North Korean Col. Chang Chun San, principal Red staff officer, asked that the word "joint" and the phrase "commander of the Chinese People's Volunteers" be stricken. This would leave administration of the area exclusively in the hands of North Koreans.

Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, UN command spokesman, commented "if this is an indication" the Chinese don't want to have anything to do with administering an armistice "it is the first time to my knowledge."

There was no implication that the Chinese considered withdrawing their troops during an armistice.

The Reds tentatively agreed to the first 12 paragraphs of the 54 paragraph allied draft. But they raised objections to the 13th, the last considered before they adjourned for the day.

Rotation Proposed

Reds protested proposed rotation of 75,000 UN troops a month during the armistice. The Communists said they were astonished at the figure. Reds originally had objected to any rotation but later agreed to 5,000 a month.

Nuckols cautioned against optimism over the work of staff officers.

"The items discussed today and on which tentative agreement was expressed are largely non-controversial," he said.

When the Reds balked in an armistice subcommittee session at the allies "complete solution" for the prisoner problem, Rear Adm. R. E. Libby said:

"We have tried every means to reach agreement. We have come to the end of our ingenuity. If we are to make any progress, your side must contribute something to this progress."

Up to Communists

Outside the conference tent, the UN negotiator said the next move is up to the Communists.

Libby presented the UN 14-point draft Monday. North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho turned it down today. He objected primarily to:

1. Voluntary repatriation of prisoners. The Reds insist all prisoners of war be exchanged, regardless of their individual wishes.

2. Visits to POW camps by the international committee of the Red Cross. Lee referred to it as the "Red Crosses of your side."

3. A parole agreement that prisoners exchanged for civilians or not repatriated would not fight again in the oKrean war.

"There is no sign of you giving up your unreasonable demands," Lee said. "If you don't give up these unreasonable and blackmailing demands no progress can be made."

However, the Communists agreed in principle to exchange sick and wounded prisoners first and to make the exchange at the Panmunjom truce site or other points in the demilitarized zone if necessary.

Nuckols said the allied blueprints for exchanging prisoners and supervising the truce would again be the basis for discussion when subcommittees meet at 11 a. m. Wednesday (9 p. m. Tuesday EST).

Eden Offers Peace In Suez Zone as England's Desire

Foreign Secretary Says Plan Needed to Fit Aspirations of Egypt

London, Jan. 29 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today Britain wants to reach agreement on defense of the Suez Canal Zone which "would meet Egyptian aspirations."

The foreign secretary told the House of Commons Britain's offer to negotiate with Egypt still stands.

"I have always believed that it should be possible to find a solution of the differences between this country and Egypt which satisfies the legitimate national aspirations of the Egyptian people, and at the same time does not jeopardize the security of the free world," Eden said.

Eden came to the House of Commons from a cabinet meeting presided over by Prime Minister Churchill and devoted to the grave situation in Egypt.

A new premier has been appointed in Cairo, and there has been hope Egypt and Britain can get together and reconcile their bitter differences over the Suez Canal and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Egypt has been demanding the removal of British troops from the vital canal area and the placing of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan under King Farouk's rule. The Saturday rioting came after bloody clashes in the Suez Canal Zone itself between British forces and both Egyptian police and irregulars.

MacArthur Calls for Man With Experience in Civil Leadership for Nomination

Colburn Says MacArthur Gives Approval to Taft by Statement

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Senator Tobey (R-N.H.) today labelled remarks by Gen. MacArthur calling for experienced civil leadership a "left-handed slap" at Gen. Eisenhower but said they "won't keep Ike from being elected president.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.) interpreted MacArthur's remarks as a strong indication of his support of Senator Taft of Ohio for the Republican presidential nomination.

Tobey is backing Eisenhower for the GOP nomination. Brewster is a Taft supporter.

They commented in separate interviews on MacArthur's statement yesterday that in selecting a national leader the voters face a demand for a man with demonstrated capability in "the science of civil government."

MacArthur made the statement in a letter to New Hampshire supporters asking that his name be withdrawn from the state's March 11 presidential primary, the first in the nation this year.

Sees Taft as Ideal

J. Wesley Colburn, one of 10 candidates for delegate to the Republican National Convention who had filed favorable-to-MacArthur in the New Hampshire race, said he felt the letter made it plain that MacArthur regards Taft as an "ideal man for president."

Eisenhower has said he would accept the Republican nomination but won't seek it. He is entered officially in New Hampshire primary by virtue of his nonwithdrawal of his name.

Bitter Weather Slows Ohio Flood

Weather Hardships Not Pronounced in Some Areas

Marietta, O., Jan. 29 (AP)—Bitter winter weather today eased the ponderous sweep of a three-state Ohio river flood—but 7,000 still were homeless and nine were dead.

Sub-freezing temperatures caused raging Ohio river tributaries to crest 12 hours ahead of time and two to three feet below the expected top.

This reduced the flood threat to down-river communities. The U. S. Weather Bureau at Cincinnati said it was cutting down the depths it expected the Ohio to

Dollar 'History' Of 1952 Budget

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Here's where each dollar comes from and where it goes, in Governor Dewey's proposed state budget of $1,092,760,887:

Income: Consumer taxes, 31 cents; business taxes, 31 cents; personal income tax, 27 cents, and all others, 11 cents.

Outgo: (State aid to localities, 55 cents); education, 26 cents; social welfare, 12 cents; per capita aid to counties, cities, towns and villages, 10 cents; all others, six cents, and reserves, one cent.

Outgo: (State purposes, 45 cents); mental hygiene, 11 cents; health, correction, social welfare and education departments, eight cents; other departments, legislature, judiciary and cost-of-living pay raises, 10 cents; public works, three cents; general state charges, three cents; debt service, three cents; capital construction, six cents, and reserves, one cent.

Christenberry Is Made Boxing Czar By Vote in Senate

Tells Newsmen He Believes Boxing Purge Is Possible to Save Sport

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Bob Christenberry was confirmed unanimously by the state Senate today as New York's boxing czar.

The action came shortly after Christenberry had told newsmen he believed professional boxing could be purged of "hoodlums and gangsters" without abolishing the sport.

Christenberry was appointed chairman of the State Athletic Commission last Sept. 28 by Governor Dewey, who directed him to clean up the ring game in New York state.

Christenberry's confirmation was voted after individual Democratic senators had reiterated their demand that boxing be outlawed in New York.

Democrats Favor Him

The Democrats, however, voted for confirmation. Senator James F. Fitzgerald, Queens Democrat, who has introduced a bill to outlaw the sport, seconded the motion to confirm. It was offered by Senator MacNeil Mitchell, Manhattan Republican.

Before the Republican-controlled Senate acted, the Senate Finance Committee voted unanimously to recommend confirmation.

Christenberry said he had fixed no time limit on when he believed boxing should be cleaned up but said he had given top priority to "the elimination of hazards" to the fighters themselves.

"It's more important first," he said, "to try to bring an end to deaths and injuries in the ring."

Viewpoint Is Emphatic

In reply to a question, the state boxing czar said that if he ever became convinced that boxing could not be cleaned up by administrative action, "I would do all I could to have it abolished."

"They didn't drown racing because of fixed races they had, or because some mobsters were in the game. They didn't dunk baseball in the creek because of the Black Sox scandal," Christenberry told a newsman.

Christenberry said he was "sat-

Dewey Says Costs Hinge On Services

State Aid to Localities Increases, Mostly for Education — 80,000 Will Get Raises

Program Proposed

Spend-as-Build Finance Arrangement Is for Public Works

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Governor Dewey sent the Legislature today a record-smashing state budget of $1,092,760,887 requiring no tax increases despite a 94 million dollar jump in appropriations.

"I know that many would like to see the state reduce its taxes," Dewey told the lawmakers in his budget message.

"So would I. But our state taxes are already far below the last pre-war rates. We cannot reduce taxes and at the same time increase state aid to the communities . . . . and also meet our own responsibilities."

Dewey recommended continuance of the 10 per cent abatement in the state's personal income tax for another year and collection of the unincorporated business tax at three per cent instead of the basic four.

Six Per Cent Pay Boost

The pay-as-you-go, balanced budget provides for a temporary, six per cent average pay raise for the state's 80 thousand employes. It carries a 55 million dollar increase in state aid to localities. The biggest boost is for education.

Dewey called New York's first billion - dollar budget "far more than an aggregation of dollars." He termed it "a budget of services; of acceptance of government responsibility."

Although total appropriations for 1952-53 are $1,092,760,887, the actual, "tax budget" expenditures total $1,053,590,161. The difference represents "deficiency" appropriations for 1951-52, which will be paid with 1951-52 revenue and not tax revenues raised in 1952-53. Dewey estimates 1952-53 revenues at $1,058,225,000.

The deficiency appropriations for 1951-52 are included in the 1952-53 budget as a statuatory "bookkeeping" requirement because they were not included in the 1951-52 budget.

56 Per Cent in Aid

Dewey pointed out that 56 per cent of the new budget represents state financial aid to localities.

The total appropriations of $1,092,760,887 consists of $482,929,440 for strictly state purposes and $609,831,447 in the local assistance section of the budget.

The state purposes appropriations are up $38,068,446 from 1951-52 appropriations of $444,860,994. The local assitance total is $55,568,508 higher than the $554,262,939 for this year.

The combined increase is $93,636,954 over total appropriations for the current fiscal year, ending March 31, which will amount to $999,123,933. The 1951-52 budget, as originally submitted by Dewey to the 1951 legislature, was $938,940,759.

Dewey proposed a new "spend-as-you-build" financing program for capital construction — state highways, hospitals and other permanent public works.

Over Several Years

This would permit the undertaking of broad programs that would extend over several years but would require budget appropriations only to cover the amount that could be spent in one budget-year, not the cost of the entire project in advance.

In the past, because the state had a whopping half-billion dollar postwar reconstruction fund, the total costs of such big programs were appropriated at the outset.

Dewey estimated that capital expenditures for 1952-53 would hit $260,900,000. Of this total, $145,700,000 is available in the capital construction fund and $115,200,000 would be provided in the new budget.

He recommended actual appropriations from 1952-53 revenue of $86,200,000. The difference would consist of a return of a 26-million dollar loan by the State Thruway Authority and three-million in interest and other income of the capital construction fund.

The overall capital construction expenditures for 1952-53 would

Eleven Bodies Recovered From Apartment Wreckage

Minneapolis, Jan. 29 (AP)—Using axes to break apart the ice-caked debris, firemen early today recovered eleven bodies from the ruins of the three-story business-apartment house razed by fire at the edge of the Minneapolis loop yesterday.

Fire Chief Reynold Malmquist said his men expected to find the bodies of six others, missing and presumed dead in the tangled wreckage of bricks and wood.

Braving 15-below-zero temperatures, firemen worked througout the night in the glare of the blazing battery of floodlights. A wrecking crane with its swinging bucket worked seven hours toppling the firegutted walls before Malmquist would allow firemen to search the ruins.

The first bodies taken out were those of a boy about 6 and a girl, 3. The little girl, found on the steel springs of a crib, clutched a doll so large firemen first thought they had found two bodies.

The American Red Cross, after repeated newspaper and radio appeals, listed as missing six adults, two teen-agers and nine young children. All were occupants of third floor quarters of the building at 69½ Glenwood avenue, two blocks northwest of the downtown business district.

Malmquist explained combing of the wreckage would be a long and tedious job. At the rear of the apartment, the roof and both floors collapsed into an almost impenetrable mass. Most of those listed as missing lived in the third floor, rear.

Standby hose lines, quelling small blazes as they sprang up in the wreckage during the night, complicated the search. The water froze almost as soon as it hit.

Bitter Weather Slows Ohio Flood

Weather Hardships Not Pronounced in Some Areas

Marietta, O., Jan. 29 (AP)—Bitter winter weather today eased the ponderous sweep of a three-state Ohio river flood—but 7,000 still were homeless and nine were dead.

Sub-freezing temperatures caused raging Ohio river tributaries to crest 12 hours ahead of time and two to three feet below the expected top.

This reduced the flood threat to down-river communities. The U. S. Weather Bureau at Cincinnati said it was cutting down the depths it expected the Ohio to

Christenberry Is Made Boxing Czar By Vote in Senate

Tells Newsmen He Believes Boxing Purge Is Possible to Save Sport

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Bob Christenberry was confirmed unanimously by the state Senate today as New York's boxing czar.

The action came shortly after Christenberry had told newsmen he believed professional boxing could be purged of "hoodlums and gangsters" without abolishing the sport.

Christenberry was appointed chairman of the State Athletic Commission last Sept. 28 by Governor Dewey, who directed him to clean up the ring game in New York state.

Christenberry's confirmation was voted after individual Democratic senators had reiterated their demand that boxing be outlawed in New York.

Democrats Favor Him

The Democrats, however, voted for confirmation. Senator James F. Fitzgerald, Queens Democrat, who has introduced a bill to outlaw the sport, seconded the motion to confirm. It was offered by Senator MacNeil Mitchell, Manhattan Republican.

Before the Republican-controlled Senate acted, the Senate Finance Committee voted unanimously to recommend confirmation.

Christenberry said he had fixed no time limit on when he believed boxing should be cleaned up but said he had given top priority to "the elimination of hazards" to the fighters themselves.

"It's more important first," he said, "to try to bring an end to deaths and injuries in the ring."

Viewpoint Is Emphatic

In reply to a question, the state boxing czar said that if he ever became convinced that boxing could not be cleaned up by administrative action, "I would do all I could to have it abolished."

"They didn't drown racing because of fixed races they had, or because some mobsters were in the game. They didn't dunk baseball in the creek because of the Black Sox scandal," Christenberry told a newsman.

Christenberry said he was "sat-

Dewey Says Costs Hinge On Services

State Aid to Localities Increases, Mostly for Education — 80,000 Will Get Raises

Spend-as-Build Finance Arrangement Is for Public Works

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Governor Dewey sent the Legislature today a record-smashing state budget of $1,092,760,887 requiring no tax increases despite a 94 million dollar jump in appropriations.

"I know that many would like to see the state reduce its taxes," Dewey told the lawmakers in his budget message.

"So would I. But our state taxes are already far below the last pre-war rates. We cannot reduce taxes and at the same time increase state aid to the communities . . . . and also meet our own responsibilities."

Dewey recommended continuance of the 10 per cent abatement in the state's personal income tax for another year and collection of the unincorporated business tax at three per cent instead of the basic four.

Six Per Cent Pay Boost

The pay-as-you-go, balanced budget provides for a temporary, six per cent average pay raise for the state's 80 thousand employes. It carries a 55 million dollar increase in state aid to localities. The biggest boost is for education.

Dewey called New York's first billion - dollar budget "far more than an aggregation of dollars." He termed it "a budget of services; of acceptance of government responsibility."

Although total appropriations for 1952-53 are $1,092,760,887, the actual, "tax budget" expenditures total $1,053,590,161. The difference represents "deficiency" appropriations for 1951-52, which will be paid with 1951-52 revenue and not tax revenues raised in 1952-53. Dewey estimates 1952-53 revenues at $1,058,225,000.

The deficiency appropriations for 1951-52 are included in the 1952-53 budget as a statuatory "bookkeeping" requirement because they were not included in the 1951-52 budget.

56 Per Cent in Aid

Dewey pointed out that 56 per cent of the new budget represents state financial aid to localities.

The total appropriations of $1,092,760,887 consists of $482,929,440 for strictly state purposes and $609,831,447 in the local assistance section of the budget.

The state purposes appropriations are up $38,068,446 from 1951-52 appropriations of $444,860,994. The local assitance total is $55,568,508 higher than the $554,262,939 for this year.

The combined increase is $93,636,954 over total appropriations for the current fiscal year, ending March 31, which will amount to $999,123,933. The 1951-52 budget, as originally submitted by Dewey to the 1951 legislature, was $938,940,759.

Dewey proposed a new "spend-as-you-build" financing program for capital construction — state highways, hospitals and other permanent public works.

Over Several Years

This would permit the undertaking of broad programs that would extend over several years but would require budget appropriations only to cover the amount that could be spent in one budget-year, not the cost of the entire project in advance.

In the past, because the state had a whopping half-billion dollar postwar reconstruction fund, the total costs of such big programs were appropriated at the outset.

Dewey estimated that capital expenditures for 1952-53 would hit $260,900,000. Of this total, $145,700,000 is available in the capital construction fund and $115,200,000 would be provided in the new budget.

He recommended actual appropriations from 1952-53 revenue of $86,200,000. The difference would consist of a return of a 26-million dollar loan by the State Thruway Authority and three-million in interest and other income of the capital construction fund.

The overall capital construction expenditures for 1952-53 would

Delaney Sentenced And Fined $10,500

Terms of Two Years Each Given on Counts in Indictment

Boston, Jan. 29 (AP)—Denis W. Delaney collector of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts, was sentenced today to two years' imprisonment and fined $10,500 on convictions of receiving $75,000 in bribes and falsifying that $180,000 in tax liens had been satisfied.

Federal Judge Charles E. Wyzanski Jr., sentenced Delaney to two years in prison on each of three counts in an indictment which charged he received $7,500 to influence tax decisions. The court ordered that the terms be served concurrently.

He also fined Delaney $2,500 on each count—the amounts he was accused of soliciting and receiving.

Also Disqualified

The sentence also included disqualification of Delaney to "hold any position of honor and profit" in the United States government.

Judge Wyzanski said he had no alternative but to pronounce sentence on a second indictment under which Delaney was convicted in three counts of falsifying tax liens, although he said to Delaney:

"In my view it is quite different and shows you received no advantage of any kind for signing these false certificates or that the government was damaged in any way."

He went on to fine Delaney the minimum of $1,000 on each of these three counts and to sentence him to six months on each count, the sentences to be served concurrently with the other sentences.

He then suspended the six months' sentences.

May Check Violence

Tunis, Tunisia, Jan. 29 (AP)—French Resident General Jean de Hautecloque said today new talks with Nationalist minded Tunisians may head off further violence in this uneasy French North African protectorate. He has a note from the French cabinet to be delivered to the Bey of Tunis, which is believed to show moderation in the French attitude toward Tunisia's demands for independence. The nation was calm today. A general strike, in effect since Jan. 18, ended yesterday on order of the Nationalist Neo-Destour Party. However, the party announced the strike would be resumed for one day on Friday. Police and soldiers continued to round up Nationalists suspected of carrying guns and being involved in the recent bloody rioting.

Asks Poll Be Taken

Port Jervis, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Wilson C. Van Duzer, Republican assemblyman from Orange county's first district, wants a county-wide poll taken on the question of repeal of the state law banning sale of colored oleomargarine. Van Duzer, who has announced he was opposed to repeal, sent a telegram today to Charles E. Dusenberry, Orange county clerk and chairman of the Republican County Committee, requesting such a poll. A bill for repeal of the ban on colored oleomargarine has been introduced in the present session of the state Legislature.

Damage to Stadium Is Theme Stressed —Would Be Insured

Argument at last night's public hearing weighed against stock car races on the municipal stadium grounds.

The session which attracted 80 persons to the Common Council chamber, city hall, ended with only shy batting for the petitioner, the Kingston Baseball Club Inc., which seeks to get out of debt through promotion of the races.

Herbert C. Myers, of 365 East Chester street, a member of the club, who said before the hearing that he did not intend to talk, took up the case of the petitioner only after the request of Alderman Robert C. Cullum, chairman of the council's building and supply committee, to hear "those in favor" was followed by a long silence.

To Get Out of Red

Myers said that if the public did not want the races in the stadium,

State Senate Passes Dope Bill

Would Send Teen-Age Drug Addicts Away for Treatment, but Without Any Stigma

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP) — Compulsory commitment of teenage drug addicts to institutions for treatment and rehabilitation, "without criminal stigma," was headed today for final legislative approval in the Assembly.

The measure — first in the Dewey administration's drastic anti-narcotics program — was passed unanimously last night by the Senate.

The Senate also voted to extend Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein's special narcotics probe for another year, until Jan. 31, 1953.

However, the Senate deferred action on two other anti-narcotics bills.

One would provide a maximum life sentence for third-offender dope peddlers. The other would authorize an extensive educational program in the schools and among the public on the degrading effects of narcotics.

The bills were deferred at the request of Democratic Senator Arthur Wachtel of the Bronx.

Wachtel said he wanted time to prepare an amendment that would make the maximum life sentence apply to second offenders. He said the life term for third offenders did not go far enough.

"I believe it should apply to second offenders,' he said. "Let's get a law with some teeth."

In addition to the bills laid aside last night, the Senate also is expected to act on two other narcotics bills.

The first would ban the sale of hypodermic needles by drugstores and other retail outlets without doctors' prescriptions.

The other would eliminate a judge's power to suspend sentence on repeated narcotics offenders.

Two other narcotics bills are awaiting approval by the Senate Finance Committee.

They would permit the seizure of any car or vessel used in illicit drug traffic; compel all persons found in an automobile with a dope peddler to "answer for" their activities, and reduce the amount of dope required to establish possession with intent to sell.

Five More Bodies Found in Cairo, Total 67 As Result of Weekend Rioting; Hotel Burns

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 29 (AP)—Five more bodies were found in the ruins of the British Turf Club and Shepheards Hotel today, high police sources said, bringing to at least 67 the total dead in Saturday's rioting and burning by mobs.

Fire brigades still played hoses on smouldering ruins of some fires. Flames still were flaring from Shepheard's.

There were no reports yet that any Americans were casualties, but U. S. Consul General Lamar Mulliner said he was checking further with Egyptian authorities, airlines and hotel officials to find out whether any Americans besides those who have already reported to him may have been in the famed hotel.

Business sources estimated the fire losses at more than 100 million pounds (288 million dollars).

Cairo, still under martial law, was quiet.

Strong squads of soldiers and police kept up a patrol of the streets, where charred debris from the dozens of fires still lay untouched. Barbed wire barriers kept crowds back from major damage areas. Tanks and armored cars patrolled the streets.

Last night's 9 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew was effective everywhere. Only a few whose work made it necessary for them to be on the streets during the night were given passes.

Leading newspapers meanwhile underlined the view that Egypt's new Premier Aly Maher Pasha will keep majority support in Parliament only if he follows up the old government's widely popular drive to oust British troops from the Suez and unite the Sudan with Egypt.

Al Misri, paper of the Wafd party, said the Wald majority which dominates Parliament will decide its future attitude toward Maher Pasha's military government "in the light of Egypt's national demands."

Parliament approved the new non-party cabinet last night with only one dissenting ballot and voted to keep martial law in force for the next two months.

King Farouk had ousted Wafd-

Eleven Bodies Recovered From Apartment Wreckage

Minneapolis, Jan. 29 (AP)—Using axes to break apart the ice-caked debris, firemen early today recovered eleven bodies from the ruins of the three-story business-apartment house razed by fire at the edge of the Minneapolis loop yesterday.

Fire Chief Reynold Malmquist said his men expected to find the bodies of six others, missing and presumed dead in the tangled wreckage of bricks and wood.

Braving 15-below-zero temperatures, firemen worked througout the night in the glare of the blazing battery of floodlights. A wrecking crane with its swinging bucket worked seven hours toppling the firegutted walls before Malmquist would allow firemen to search the ruins.

The first bodies taken out were those of a boy about 6 and a girl, 3. The little girl, found on the steel springs of a crib, clutched a doll so large firemen first thought they had found two bodies.

The American Red Cross, after repeated newspaper and radio appeals, listed as missing six adults, two teen-agers and nine young children. All were occupants of third floor quarters of the building at 69½ Glenwood avenue, two blocks northwest of the downtown business district.

Malmquist explained combing of the wreckage would be a long and tedious job. At the rear of the apartment, the roof and both floors collapsed into an almost impenetrable mass. Most of those listed as missing lived in the third floor, rear.

Standby hose lines, quelling small blazes as they sprang up in the wreckage during the night, complicated the search. The water froze almost as soon at it hit.

Justice Elsworth Pays Tribute to CharlesM.Newkirk

When the January trial term of Supreme Court recessed this morning following receipt of the Grand Jury report, Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth who received the report in the absence of Justice Harry E. Schirck, adjourned the term until 11 a. m. on March 1, out of respect to the memory of Charles M. Newkirk who for over 10 years served as chief court officer. Newkirk died suddenly on Main street this morning on his way to the court.

Prior to taking the report of the Grand Jury Justice Elsworth paid a tribute to deceased and directed that when the court recess it do so out of respect of his memory. Newkirk had served many years as a court officer prior to becoming chief officer.

Justice Elsworth said the court and the community had been shocked and saddened by the death of Newkirk who was one of the fine, upright and honorable citizens of the community, a man who had always been honorable in all of his dealings. He was of Holland Dutch ancestry.

Justice Elsworth said he had lost a personal friend of many years acquaintance, a man who had lived a full and useful life and had died as he had always wanted to "in action."

The court extended his sympathy and that of the members of the court to Mrs. Newkirk and his family.

Rotella is charged with setting on fire buildings in Phoenicia. He was arrested following an investigation of several fires in the Phoenicia area by Corporal Ray Dunn of Phoenicia and Sergeant Arthur A. Reilly of the B.C.I. unit at the Kingston State Police sub-station and other troopers from that station.

Rotella entered a plea of innocent and told the Court he was represented by Francis Martocci. Rotella was remanded to the custody of the sheriff and his case transferred to County court for disposition.

Three Others Transferred

Three other sealed indictments returned by a prior grand jury and still in Supreme court were also transferred by motion of District Attorney Bruhn to County court.

The grand jury returned one dismissal, a charge of resisting an officer lodged against Conrad Bolde of Highland by Officer Fred Bragg. Bail was exonerated.

The grand jury was excused with the thanks of the Court until March 1, but will not return unless summoned by the district attorney.

Yale Will Boost Faculty Salaries

New Haven, Jan. 29 (AP)—A Yale University spokesman today termed "substaltially correct" a report that the university plans an immediate faculty salary increase amounting to $250,000 a year.

The report appeared in a copyrighted story in the Yale Daily News, an undergraduate publication.

The newspaper said the largest increase will go to instructors and assistant professors, but that minimum earnings have been increased throughout the faculty.

Under the scale, the News said, the minimum salary for any faculty member will be $3,500 per year, paid to beginning instructors. Up to now, there has been no minimum and the new minimum will mean increases for many instructors, the publication said.

The new minimum salary for an assistant professor serving his first three-year term was listed at $4,750, an increase of $450. Assistant professors in the second three-year terms now will receive $5,500, compared with the $4,500 previously paid them, the report added.

The newspaper said the pay increase is the first of several planned improvements made possible by the increase in tuition announced for next year. The new tuition will be $1,600 per year starting next year. This was announced by Pres. A. Whitney Griswold last month.

Ruins May Be Death Trap

Firemen feared the bodies of 17 persons, 11 of them children, would be found in these ruins in Minneapolis. Flames, smoke and falling debris prevented an early search. The building containing business establishments on the first floor and apartments on two upper stories burned early Jan. 28. Forty-six persons lived in the building. (AP Wirephoto).

Truck Cuts Off Electric Service

Electric service was disrupted in the East Chester street area early today for about an hour and a half when a trailer truck struck a pole and knocked down a transformer.

Officers Van Steenburgh and Eisele reported at 12:20 a. m., that the pole "snapped off" when the truck, owned by the M. & S. Fruit & Produce Co., of Syracuse, and driven by Americo Maggie, of Syracuse, struck it.

The transformer, the report said, fell on the truck. Central Hudson Gas & Electric Co., was notified at 12:25 and temporary repairs were completed by 2 p. m., when service was restored.

Officer Meyer Levy was assigned to direct northbound traffic through Foxhall avenue while repairs were being made. The truck left under its own power after the transformer was removed.

Streets throughout the city were reported slippery during the night.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—Railroad stocks led the market into higher ground today with most gains measured in fractions.

Activity was better than the average of recent sessions and buyers continued cautious and selective.

Some of the railroad issues were ahead better than a point at times. Radio-TV stocks and steel shares were among the stronger groups but their gains for the most part were fractional.

The remainder of the list showed narrow price changes with a plentiful sprinkling of minus signs.

While traders kept on foreign developments, especially in Eygpt and Tunisia, they were sensitive to domestic news.

Favorable earnings reports of many carriers, for instance, attracted attention to the rails. A 100 per cent stock dividend added a point at one time to Foster Wheeler.

The wider gains included more than a point advances at times by Zenith Radio, Atlantic Coastline Railroad, Santa Fe and Illinois Central.

Other advances included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown, Studebaker, Goodrich Rubber, Montgomery Ward, International Telephone, Anaconda, American Cyanamid, Westinghouse, Philadelphia Reading Coal, Texas Co. and Sinclair.

Among the losers were Case, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, American Woolen, Union Pacific, Paramount, Johns-Manville and U. S. Gypsum.

On the curb market prices moved a little higher with most of the advances measured in fractions.

The gains included Rotary Electric Steel, Woodley Petroleum, Molybdenum, New Mexico and Arizona Land, Glen Alden Coal, Electric Bond and Share and Consolidated Mining and Smelting.

On the bond market prices edged ahead, led by selected rails. Most price changes were narrow. U. S. Governments remained steady.

Editorial Group Seeks Reports of Capital Doings

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—The New York State Society of Newspaper Editors sponsored legislation today to have a "daily verbatim public record" made of proceedings in the State Senate and Assembly.

The bill was introduced by Republican Senator George T. Manning of Rochester.

Editor John E. N. Hume, Jr., of the Schenectady Gazette, co-chairman of the society's committee on the legislative record, said the bill "will go far in keeping the public informed of what is happening" in both Houses.

Under the Manning proposal, the official stenographers of both Houses would be directed to deliver a record of all proceedings and debates to the Senate secretary or the Assembly clerk "not later than the close of the second legislative day thereafter."

The record would be required to be kept "in a place convenient for public examination."

A similar measure, which had the society's support, died in committee last year.

At the present time, records of official stenographers are not made available to the public. Specific requests for excerpts are granted only if legislators involved agree.

Justice Elsworth Pays Tribute to CharlesM.Newkirk

When the January trial term of Supreme Court recessed this morning following receipt of the Grand Jury report, Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth who received the report in the absence of Justice Harry E. Schirck, adjourned the term until 11 a. m. on March 1, out of respect to the memory of Charles M. Newkirk who for over 10 years served as chief court officer. Newkirk died suddenly on Main street this morning on his way to the court.

Prior to taking the report of the Grand Jury Justice Elsworth paid a tribute to deceased and directed that when the court recess it do so out of respect of his memory. Newkirk had served many years as a court officer prior to becoming chief officer.

Justice Elsworth said the court and the community had been shocked and saddened by the death of Newkirk who was one of the fine, upright and honorable citizens of the community, a man who had always been honorable in all of his dealings. He was of Holland Dutch ancestry.

Justice Elsworth said he had lost a personal friend of many years acquaintance, a man who had lived a full and useful life and had died as he had always wanted to "in action."

The court extended his sympathy and that of the members of the court to Mrs. Newkirk and his family.

There were five sealed indictments reported, all of which were transferred on motion of District Attorney Bruhn to County court for further disposition.

He was arrested following an investigation of several fires in the Phoenicia area by Corporal Ray Dunn of Phoenicia and Sergeant Arthur A. Reilly of the B.C.I. unit at the Kingston State Police sub-station and other troopers from that station.

Rotella entered a plea of innocent and told the Court he was represented by Francis Martocci. Rotella was remanded to the custody of the sheriff and his case transferred to County court for disposition.

Three Others Transferred

Three other sealed indictments returned by a prior grand jury and still in Supreme court were also transferred by motion of District Attorney Bruhn to County court.

Yale Will Boost Faculty Salaries

New Haven, Jan. 29 (AP)—A Yale University spokesman today termed "substaltially correct" a report that the university plans an immediate faculty salary increase amounting to $250,000 a year.

The report appeared in a copyrighted story in the Yale Daily News, an undergraduate publication.

The newspaper said the largest increase will go to instructors and assistant professors, but that minimum earnings have been increased throughout the faculty.

Under the scale, the News said, the minimum salary for any faculty member will be $3,500 per year, paid to beginning instructors. Up to now, there has been no minimum and the new minimum will mean increases for many instructors, the publication said.

The new minimum salary for an assistant professor serving his first three-year term was listed at $4,750, an increase of $450. Assistant professors in the second three-year terms now will receive $5,500, compared with the $4,500 previously paid them, the report added.

The newspaper said the pay increase is the first of several planned improvements made possible by the increase in tuition announced for next year. The new tuition will be $1,600 per year starting next year. This was announced by Pres. A. Whitney Griswold last month.

Ruins May Be Death Trap

Firemen feared the bodies of 17 persons, 11 of them children, would be found in these ruins in Minneapolis. Flames, smoke and falling debris prevented an early search. The building containing business establishments on the first floor and apartments on two upper stories burned early Jan. 28. Forty-six persons lived in the building. (AP Wirephoto).

Truck Cuts Off Electric Service

Electric service was disrupted in the East Chester street area early today for about an hour and a half when a trailer truck struck a pole and knocked down a transformer.

Officers Van Steenburgh and Eisele reported at 12:20 a. m., that the pole "snapped off" when the truck, owned by the M. & S. Fruit & Produce Co., of Syracuse, and driven by Americo Maggie, of Syracuse, struck it.

The transformer, the report said, fell on the truck. Central Hudson Gas & Electric Co., was notified at 12:25 and temporary repairs were completed by 2 p. m., when service was restored.

Officer Meyer Levy was assigned to direct northbound traffic through Foxhall avenue while repairs were being made. The truck left under its own power after the transformer was removed.

Streets throughout the city were reported slippery during the night.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—Railroad stocks led the market into higher ground today with most gains measured in fractions.

Activity was better than the average of recent sessions and buyers continued cautious and selective.

Some of the railroad issues were ahead better than a point at times. Radio-TV stocks and steel shares were among the stronger groups but their gains for the most part were fractional.

The remainder of the list showed narrow price changes with a plentiful sprinkling of minus signs.

While traders kept on foreign developments, especially in Eygpt and Tunisia, they were sensitive to domestic news.

Favorable earnings reports of many carriers, for instance, attracted attention to the rails. A 100 per cent stock dividend added a point at one time to Foster Wheeler.

The wider gains included more than a point advances at times by Zenith Radio, Atlantic Coastline Railroad, Santa Fe and Illinois Central.

Other advances included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown, Studebaker, Goodrich Rubber, Montgomery Ward, International Telephone, Anaconda, American Cyanamid, Westinghouse, Philadelphia Reading Coal, Texas Co. and Sinclair.

Among the losers were Case, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, American Woolen, Union Pacific, Paramount, Johns-Manville and U. S. Gypsum.

On the curb market prices moved a little higher with most of the advances measured in fractions.

The gains included Rotary Electric Steel, Woodley Petroleum, Molybdenum, New Mexico and Arizona Land, Glen Alden Coal, Electric Bond and Share and Consolidated Mining and Smelting.

On the bond market prices edged ahead, led by selected rails. Most price changes were narrow. U. S. Governments remained steady.

Editorial Group Seeks Reports of Capital Doings

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—The New York State Society of Newspaper Editors sponsored legislation today to have a "daily verbatim public record" made of proceedings in the State Senate and Assembly.

The bill was introduced by Republican Senator George T. Manning of Rochester.

Editor John E. N. Hume, Jr., of the Schenectady Gazette, co-chairman of the society's committee on the legislative record, said the bill "will go far in keeping the public informed of what is happening" in both Houses.

Under the Manning proposal, the official stenographers of both Houses would be directed to deliver a record of all proceedings and debates to the Senate secretary or the Assembly clerk "not later than the close of the second legislative day thereafter."

The record would be required to be kept "in a place convenient for public examination."

A similar measure, which had the society's support, died in committee last year.

At the present time, records of official stenographers are not made available to the public. Specific requests for excerpts are granted only if legislators involved agree.

State University Trustees Seek More Independence

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP) — Trustees of the State University of New York feel they have been hobbled by "severe restrictions" and want the state to grant them more independence.

In their fourth annual report to Governor Dewey, the Legislature and the Board of Regents yesterday, the 15 trustees tabbed as "particularly unfortunate" the authority given state fiscal officers to exercise judgment "with respect to the university's educational program."

The board urged that the university be granted a "measure of automomy which insures both integrity and effectiveness."

"As an agency supported by public funds," the report stated, "State University of New York is subject to virtually all the laws rules and regulations which govern the conventional agencies of the state government." The trustees added:

"As a new university in an old state, it has not been granted by and large the consideration, the freedom of operation, the professional autonomy enjoyed by almost every other state university in the country."

Eurich Is Praised

The report praised Dr. Alvin C. Eurich, who resigned Sept. 1 as university president, for achieving "considerable progress on an informal basis in meeting this overall situation." Dr. William S. Carlson will succeed Eurich April 1.

The board also stressed the view that Governor Dewey had "lent all possible assistance to the university in coping with these difficulties." However, it concluded that "permanent solutions to many of these problems seem likely to reqtire formal definitions of authority."

Other Action

The trustees also:

1—Called for "a full-scale reexamination of the basic reasons for tuition charges and their relationship, if any, to the ability and economic well-being of the student."

2—Said that eventually they might want to adopt "some overall policies with respect to the relative financial obligations of the state, the local communities and the students for the support of public educational programs within the university."

There are 33 units in the State University—two liberal arts colleges, two medical centers, seven professional colleges, 11 teacher colleges and 11 industrial institutes.

3—Included in its list of proposed capital construction projects $14,300,000 for basic science building and equipment at the New York Medical Center and $5,650,000 for a similar development at the Syracuse Medical Center.

Elected

J. H. STOUTENBURGH

Members of the Empire State Well Drillers Association at their annual meeting in Utica, recently, elected James H. Stoutenburgh of Glenford president for the ensuing year. Soutenburgh, who has served the organization as vice president, is chairman of the committee to survey the drillers' civil defense project and is also active in local civil defense work.

Stoutenburgh organized the chamber of commerce of the town of Hurley of which he is president and is a charter member of the Olive Chamber of Commerce; he is a working member of the Glenford Methodist Church and Men's Club, and has participated in numerous civic and charitable drives in Ulster county. The new president has plans underway to bring the drillers' association to Kingston for their spring meeting next June to help publicize the 300th Anniversary Celebration and give the members an opportunity to view the historic landmarks and scenic attractions of this part of the state.

Americans 'In the Chips'

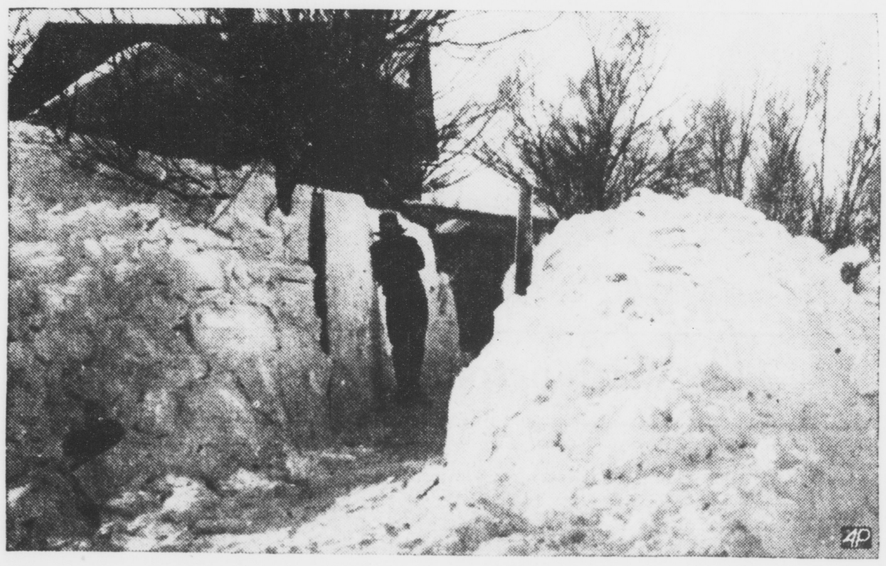

Chicago (AP)—Americans, in one sense, are in the chips. Martin A. —Janis of Toledo, Ohio, president of the National Potato Chip Institute, reports potato chip production in 1951 reached an all-time high of 336,336,780 pounds. That averaged, as he figured it, 2.23 pounds of chips per person in the U. S.

Britain Will Get 300-Million Grant

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Dollar-short Britain is being given an emergency 300 million dollar slice of mutual security funds to prevent a threatened cutback of its defense effort.

The grant was announced last night by Mutual Security Director W. Averell Harriman, who said that without it Britain would be forced to reduce its contribution to the western arms buildup by twice as much.

The money will be used up to July 1 to buy "raw materials and components" which have to be paid for in dollars. The purchases will be made largely in the United States.

For the purpose President Truman approved a dip into military aid funds which otherwise might have been used for arms and supplies made in this country.

The action came less than two weeks after Prime Minister Churchill assured Congress "I have not come here to ask you for money."

Negotiations in Progress

Actually, Harriman disclosed, negotiations for assistance were in progress before Churchill sailed for the U. S.

Except for an assist of some 40 million dollars last month, the aid was the first extended the British since Britain voluntarily waived further Marshall Plan help more than a year ago. That was when things were looking up and British dollar reserves were rising.

However, in the last half of 1951, Harriman said, "a very serious drain" reduced the reserves by $1,532,000,000 to $2,355,000,000 at the end of the year. He said it was due in large part to inflation resulting from the efforts of the west to shore up defenses against the threat of Communist aggression.

The allotment was only half of what Britain originally sought. France expects to get some 600 million dollars in direct grants and in dollars spent by the U. S. there for military installations and similar purposes.

Shot to Death Playing

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—Eleven-year-old Angel Louis Franco was shot to death yesterday while playing in a vacant lot in the Bronx, and a 13-year-old boy was ordered held on a juvenile delinquency charge. Assistant District Attorney Edmund Farrell said the older boy, whose name was not disclosed, told this story: He had bought a .22 calibre rifle two days ago and paid $11 for it and some ammunition. He had fired it yesterday from the roof of his home. Later, returning to his home, he suddenly aimed it into the vacant lot and pressed the trigger, thinking it was unloaded. He saw young Franco fall. Throwing the gun under his bed, he hastened to Franco's aid and then ran to a nearby police station to sob out his story. He said he didn't know the younger boy.

St. Louis as 'Hell Hole'? Well, Maybe It's Weather

St. Louis, Jan. 29 (AP)—The "hell hole of St. Louis" slipped right up on British Vice Consul Frank Taylor today.

If the friendly 38-year-old bachelor was aware the foreign secretary in London thought St. Louis is a hell hole, in a sense, along with Jibuti, Madagascar and Borneo it has slipped his mind until—

He came across an article in a current magazine. It reported St. Louis, Houston and New Orleans were on the British foreign office's list of particularly disagreeable posts.

At first Taylor was skeptical. After all St. Louis is a prosperous, industrial city with its share of cultural background. It has a population of 850,000 and is the center of a metropolitan area of some 1,600,000.

Not First Class Holes

So he checked the files. And there the three cities were on the list, but in a half-hearted way. They aren't considered first class hell holes by the British foreign office.

First class hell holes call for only 18 months of duty instead of the normal three year sting and time and one-half is given toward retirement. In the three American cities the diplomats get only time and one-half on pensions.

"Living here certainly wouldn't affect your health and morale at the moment," Taylor said. "The only thing is that in the long run such changeable weather might affect your health; therefore the pension helps."

Now Take Kuwait

To illustrate an out-and-out hell hole Taylor took Kuwait, his last post where he came out a sick man. Kuwait, at the tip of the Persian Gulf between Iraq and Iran, is about the size of Connecticut and has a population of 200,000. All drinking water is imported into Kuwait in tank ships and hauled overland by donkeys.

"It's straight desert on a floating sea of oil," said Taylor, "and it's hotter than blazes. Sometimes it reaches 120 degrees in the shade."

But back to the "hell hole of St. Louis." Taylor, who has been here 18 months, scratched around for the foreign office's reasons. He stuck with the weather.

"For example," he said, "I played golf in my shirt sleeves Saturday. Sunday I went to the zoo in a suit and yesterday I had to bundle up in a duffle coat (overcoat to you) because it was cold and snowing. Now wouldn't you say that was a bit of weather?"

Britain Will Get 300-Million Grant

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Dollar-short Britain is being given an emergency 300 million dollar slice of mutual security funds to prevent a threatened cutback of its defense effort.

The grant was announced last night by Mutual Security Director W. Averell Harriman, who said that without it Britain would be forced to reduce its contribution to the western arms buildup by twice as much.

The money will be used up to July 1 to buy "raw materials and components" which have to be paid for in dollars. The purchases will be made largely in the United States.

For the purpose President Truman approved a dip into military aid funds which otherwise might have been used for arms and supplies made in this country.

The action came less than two weeks after Prime Minister Churchill assured Congress "I have not come here to ask you for money."

Negotiations in Progress

Actually, Harriman disclosed, negotiations for assistance were in progress before Churchill sailed for the U. S.

Except for an assist of some 40 million dollars last month, the aid was the first extended the British since Britain voluntarily waived further Marshall Plan help more than a year ago. That was when things were looking up and British dollar reserves were rising.

However, in the last half of 1951, Harriman said, "a very serious drain" reduced the reserves by $1,532,000,000 to $2,355,000,000 at the end of the year. He said it was due in large part to inflation resulting from the efforts of the west to shore up defenses against the threat of Communist aggression.

The allotment was only half of what Britain originally sought. France expects to get some 600 million dollars in direct grants and in dollars spent by the U. S. there for military installations and similar purposes.

Americans 'In the Chips'

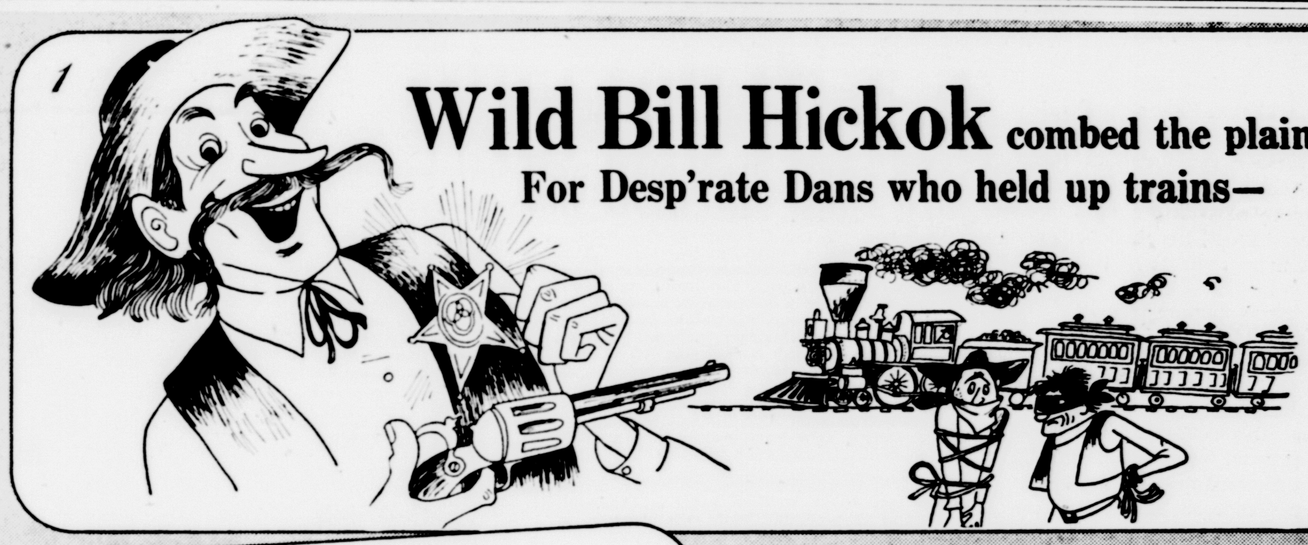

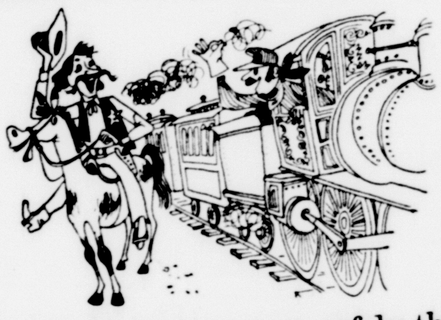

Chicago (AP)—Americans, in one sense, are in the chips. Martin A. —Janis of Toledo, Ohio, president of the National Potato Chip Institute, reports potato chip production in 1951 reached an all-time high of 336,336,780 pounds. That averaged, as he figured it, 2.23 pounds of chips per person in the U. S.

Shot to Death Playing

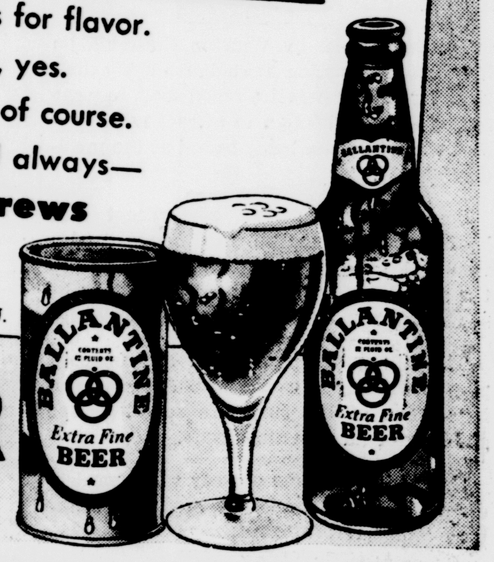

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—Eleven-year-old Angel Louis Franco was shot to death yesterday while playing in a vacant lot in the Bronx, and a 13-year-old boy was ordered held on a juvenile delinquency charge. Assistant District Attorney Edmund Farrell said the older boy, whose name was not disclosed, told this story: He had bought a .22 calibre rifle two days ago and paid $11 for it and some ammunition. He had fired it yesterday from the roof of his home. Later, returning to his home, he suddenly aimed it into the vacant lot and pressed the trigger, thinking it was unloaded. He saw young Franco fall. Throwing the gun under his bed, he hastened to Franco's aid and then ran to a nearby police station to sob out his story. He said he didn't know the younger boy.

REALISM OF THE BUDGET

The $85,400,000,000 budget for the 1953 year submitted to Congress by President Truman is $14,400,000,000 more than the government can expect to take in for the year at present tax rates. Since leaders in Congress plainly do not intend to raise taxes in this election year, it is indicated that the budget must be trimmed or a sizable sum added to the national debt.

Congress may find trimming the budget almost as embarrassing a job in election year as passing new tax increases might be. Sincere legislators will be cautious about the military sections of the budget, by far the largest, lest defense by hampered by hasty or unwise economies. Cutting domestic expenditures always means courting the displeasure of particular interest groups which benefit directly from the questioned appropriation. In an election year members of Congress are not anxious to irritate voters.

In the final analysis the powers to tax and to spend lie with Congress. It is the duty of Congress to be certain that the taxes it imposes are fair and sufficient for operating the government. It must see that the budget is balanced whenever possible, and this can be done only by giving approval to a budget which is based on a realistic estimate of the amount of money available. Unless the President hopes for a change of heart in Congress regarding further tax increases this year, his budget is not realistic in that sense. Unless there is more cost-cutting than experienced observers expect, the final budget will not be much more realistic in its relation to income.

CIVILIAN BLOOD LINE FAILED

A dispatch from Tokyo by Edward Kennedy, Scripps-Howard correspondent, sets down a story that ought to be read with shame throughout this country.

It tells how a private, wounded on patrol, was brought to a forward hospital in Korea with one leg nearly shot off, his other foot shattered and an arm broken. He needed blood badly. But there wasn't any, because the civilian blood line from the home front had failed.

So four fighting soldiers from the front lines, who might themselves be struck down at any time by enemy fire, had to be pulled back to the hospital tent to give their blood in hope of saving their comrade.

Thirteen others from the wounded man's front-line regiment also gave their blood.

When the soldiers had each given a pint, they returned to their foxholes and bunkers. As Kennedy put it:

"In the States you get coffee and cookies after you give a pint of blood. These men got a Chinese Communist attack for breakfast and they got shot at for lunch.

The wounded man's life was saved, though he lost a leg. And he's grateful that his buddies could be spared from the fighting front at the critical moment.

What this story tells about our performance on the home front could consume the space of several editorials. But is any comment really necessary?

The hats worn by Winston Churchill on his visit to America attracted much attention. Not many American men seem to wear hats distinctive enough to attract notice except when they are being tossed at the presidential ring.

Some critics of the government will heartily support the bill in Congress which would give the District of Columbia back to the state of Maryland. But there might be some doubt that the gift would be welcome.

The big question about a disarmament plan is whether it would be like the lifesaving stroke of the surgeon's scapel or the stabbing of an assassin's knife.

Spring is that time of year when gardeners wish for a species of seed which the birds would refuse to eat.

Russia's advice to rebellious satellites is "Don't bite the hand which bleeds you."

UNIVERSAL MILITARY SERVICE

The organization of a Garrison State involves social and political consequences and the diversion of men from their normal activities to military participation. Shifting youth from schools to camps, from free activities to regimented disciplines, during the early years of their lives, can produce permanent psychological ractions.

The present program for universal military service is an extraordinarily involved one, from which only the mentally and physically defective will be freed. All young men, 18½ years of age, fresh out of high school, are to be given a six months' pilot course in Universal Military Training.

About 1,200,000 come of age, that is 18½ years old, each year. Of this number, it is estimated that 400,000 will be unfit, leaving 800,000 for this program. Only the physically and mentally unfit, according to Pentagon standards, will be able to proceed directly from high school to college with some assurance of remaining there.

After a young man has served for six months in the pilot course, he will be put into the active reserve for one year and a half. This means that the young man might begin a course at college, but could be interrupted at any time by being called up to replace American troops in Korea, Malaya, Burma or Europe, without regard to his personal future. As, except in Korea, our troops mostly mark time, this enforced idleness, in uniform, is of great concern to those who fear its social consequences.

At any rate, according to this program, few ambitious young men would be able to enter college before they are 20 or 21 years of age. They would be 24 or 25 years old before they got their Bachelor's degree. Those who require graduate work, such as doctors, lawyers, engineers, technicians, would be close to 30 before they would be graduated.

Experience shows that many in the military service, out of boredom and loneliness, marry, often under circumstances and to persons that can only be regarded as unfortunate. This raises moral problems which permanently affect our society.

In the past, our youth were used in this way to defend their country for comparatively short periods of great national peril. This, however, is planned to be a permanent program, to be followed in peace as well as in war. Further, after a young man has given his two years to this service, he is to be put into the inactive reserve for a period of six years, the President apparently to have the right to shift individuals from the inactive to the active reserve at will.

Smart boys, that is, those who are brilliant in their marks, will be able to find ways to get an education. In this country, however, it has been experience that the most useful men are not always those who have been exceptionally smart as boys. The large reservoir of college graduates has been drawn upon to produce competent persons to do the multitude of tasks essential in an industrial society.

Already, as a consequence of World War II, this country is short of engineers, which is a serious matter for the future. Shortages also appear in many fields of scholarship in which the theoretical work is done, thus forming the basis for our amazing success in technical fields. Atomic fission is a product of the classroom and college laboratory as it is of engineering and industrial skill.

Recently, a number of religious leaders came to Washington for one of those orientation sessions which have become so customary since the war. This conference was called to consider the character guidance program for our troops.

UMT arose only in question time, and was not on the agenda among the clergymen and religious leaders present. These men have devoted their lives to moral issues and have had to deal with young people through the various stages of development. Also, some had even served as chaplains.

So far as I can learn, while the clergy were deeply moved by the broad nature of the discussion of moral problems, which, at this conference, transcended religious differences, many of them felt that UMT imperils both the young man and the country and is not wise for such a society as ours. It could defeat our civilization by making it militaristic. Such militarism, including universal military service, had devastating effects on Germany and Japan, both of which employed it, in one form or another.

Moral leaders, particularly the clergy, cannot concern themselves only with immediate, pressing political problems. Their responsibility is to think in terms of civilization and the relationship of man to it.

This is a subject that requires more than casual discussion and might well be made a campaign issue. Stalin is becoming more troublesome, in our domestic matters, than Hitler ever was.

That Body of Yours

THE ELECTROENCEPHALOGRAPH

One of the most forward steps in medicine is the encouragement given our research workers. For years, these patient investigators have not been able to give their whole thought and time to research work because they had to make a living—teaching, demonstrating, practicing medicine. Today, thanks to research foundations, some of these research workers are able to give their whole thought and time to research work and thousands are helped thereby.

For many years, our epileptics were treated by bromides which lessened the number and severity of attacks but left the patient depressed in spirit. All over the world research workers were studying epilepsy and learned that some "spells" were not true epilepsy but that barbiturate drugs would control true epilepsy if liquids and starch foods were reduced in amount.

Perhaps the crowning result of the study of epilepsy was the discovery of electroencephalography. The electroencephalograph has taken its place with the electrocardiograph, as it records the movements of the brain just as the electrocardiograph records the movements and rhythm of the heart.

The electroencephalograph tracings enable the physician to diagnose epilepsy and this was considered its only value in medicine, but, just as Drs. Banting and Best's discovery of insulin was valued for its control of diabetes, and insulin was later found to have many other uses, so the discovery of the electroencephalograph opened the way for other valuable uses to men.

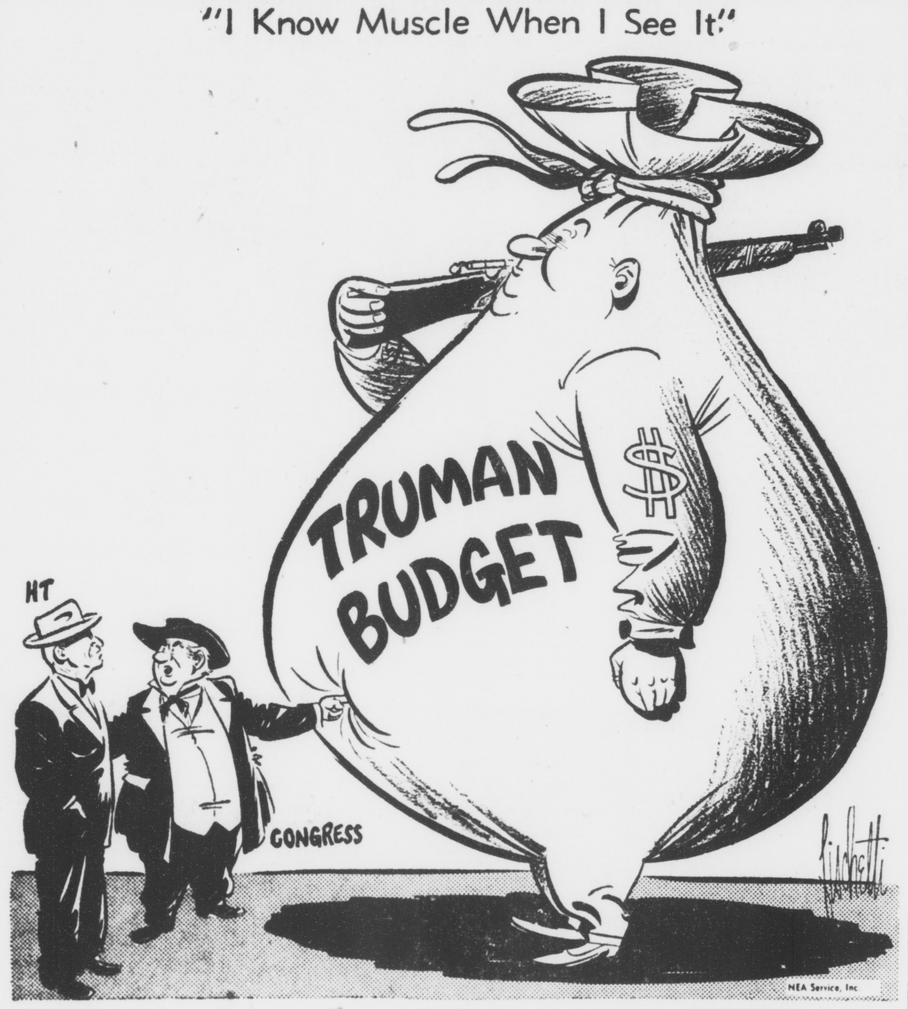

In Archives of Industrial Hygiene and Occupational Medicine, published by the American Medical Association, Drs. J. L. Fetterman and V. M. Victoroff state that the electroencephalograph, working in with other clinical and laboratory surveys, can help in removal of persons from jobs they should not hold, measure mental capacity following a brain injury, detect latent or underlying seizures such as epilepsy, estimate the effect of environment and toxic (poisonous) agents on brain action, and separate hysterical from organic brain disorders. In law or medicolegal cases, it is of special value in determining mental capacity in testamentary cases, guilt in criminal cases, latent and actual brain damage in compensation cases, and malingering in law suits claiming total loss of vision, hearing and touch.

Drs. Fetterman and Victoroff propose encephalographic tests as an aid in the selection of those workers and executives whose alertness and clear consciousness is vital to safety and welfare of others, as in public transportation.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Editors Note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his daughter, Mrs. George L. Arnold, of Santa Monica, Calif.)

Washington, D. C.
January 26, 1952

Dear Daughter,

The house has seemed very empty ever since you kids left. I suppose I shouldn't call you kids anymore inasmuch as you're a grown up lady now with two sons of your own. But anyway it's been lonesome since you left. We packed up the electric train and put it in the attic till next Christmas when I hope you'll be back, and when little Drew will be able to operate it almost as much as his grandfather.

Only next time please don't fly. We almost held our breath until that plane got back to Los Angeles.

A lot of things have been happening since you left. Among others, Harry Truman has been trying to put me in jail again. Undersecretary of the Navy Whitehair tipped him off that I had written a column about a White House conference with General Bradley and he immediately blew his top.

The column had only been on the teletype to New York one hour when I began to hear about it.

The President was really mad. He stormed and raged and said he would throw me in jail. I can't begin to repeat his language, but it was pretty rough.

Finally he told General Bradley to get hold of me and kill the column.

However, when General Bradley read the column he didn't seem to think there was much wrong. He suggested only two changes, which I was glad to make.

Investigation Begins

The column was published on schedule as corrected, no military secrets were revealed, and so far I am still out of jail. But that didn't end the matter. Immediately afterward, the President ordered the FBI to make a superduper investigation of your old man, together with just about everyone I've ever talked to at the army or navy.

On top of this, Jim McInerney, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, (his boss, Howard McGrath doesn't like me) had the FBI contact some men who once worked for me and appealed to them to disclose my new sources. Naturally they didn't. They didn't know my sources in the first place and wouldn't have revealed 'em if they did.

The White House investigators then dug back into what I said in defense of General George Marshall when Senator McCarthy attacked him, and have been trying to find out where I got the material I used one whole year ago. I compared General Marshall's wonderful war record with McCarthy's failure to take part in any combat missions; so the investigators want to know where I got McCarthy's war record, which they say was supposed to be a complete secret.

Funny how the President now wants to protect one of his worst senatorial enemies and go after a newsman who defended his old friend Marshall. However, that's the way things are sometimes done around here these days.

However, I'm still out of jail, and if anyone has detected any pulling of punches as a result of all this, I hope my family will be the first to tell me.

Meanwhile, I went down to Reidsville, N. C., last week, to the only town where I was supposed to have spent some time in jail—aside from a short interim in a Siberian jail as the guest of the Soviet.

I don't know whether it's because a criminal always returns to the scene of a crime or whether the folks of Reidsville wanted to give their most famous alleged jailbird a home-coming reception. But anyway I went down to North Carolina and had a wonderful time.

Predawn Bath

P. W. Glidewell, the attorney who defended me against the charge of taking a sponge bath in the southern railroad yards at 3 a. m. After taking down a Chautauqua tent, introduced me to the Reidsville Chamber of Commerce where I spoke in the evening, and we had quite a time.

A lot of things have changed about Reidsville since that first memorable occasion when I was there. And I guess a lot of things have changed about your father, too. I was 16 then, just out of high school, and no one ever dreamed I would become the bete noir of certain politicians, least of all myself.

Reidsville was just a country village then, and its chief industry was Red Jay and Black Eagle chewing tobacco. Now that same tobacco factory turns out 180 million Lucky Strikes a day, and every morning the American Tobacco Company hands Uncle Sam a check for $800,000, as its daily cigarette tax.

Judge Ira Humphries, who acquitted me for taking the bath in the railroad yards, has retired now. And the court house where I was tried has been torn down. (Incidentally, your father was never actually put in jail—just held for an hour by a very courteous cop).

The welcoming committee drove me down to the railroad yards to try to find the spigot and the scene of the alleged crime, but we couldn't locate it. The town has changed too much.

Before the A-Bomb

In fact, it's become quite modern. There is an up-to-date Negro high school more modern than the white schools. And I saw a bluetile community swimming pool which should make impromptu bathing much easier—and less public. I also drove by the high-school grounds where we once pitched our Chautauqua tent. The old school is gone now and a modern one has taken its place.

It made me feel a little old to see how things had changed. Those were the good old simple days before the atom bomb, the days when William Jennings Bryan, then secretary of state, had time to get out and speak to the people on Chautauqua; the days when a lecturer didn't need a microphone and a loud-speaker. He used his lungs instead.

That was also the summer that the Archduke Franz Ferdinand was killed by a Serb assassin in a little town in Bosnia, thereby precipating World War 1 and a series of events which have made all our lives a lot more complicated ever since.

In those days, Reidsville was like most towns of America — clean rows of white comfortable cottages with wide verandas and hammocks where we once sat and held hands with good-looking girls on Saturday nights.

And, though things have changed a lot, there is one thing about this and the other small towns that hasn't changed—the people. Their understanding of the fundamental things of life remains unchanged and unspoiled by the complexities of modern civilization, and as long as we have this kind of people in America I am not too much worried about what's going to happen to my grandsons in the future. Give both of them a hug, and I hope to stay out of jail a little while longer.

YOUR FATHER.

The Tragic Prophecy

Thomas Otway (1652-1685), English dramatist and poet, was at first an actor. He quit the stage when he dreamed that he would choke on a role. He lived in extreme poverty and one day emerged from his den to beg for food. He asked a passerby to give him a shilling. He was recognized and given a guinea (21 shillings). The overjoyed poet rushed to a bakery to buy some rolls. But he was so famished that he choked to death on the first roll. Thus the prophetic dream, with a slight deviation in spelling, became literally true.

Hoover's Speech Is Described as Driving Wedge Between Taft, Eisenhower

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 29—Herbert Hoover's speech on world affairs is bound to increase the confusion inside the Republican party and serve to drive a wedge between the views of General Eisenhower and those of Senator Taft.

For the Democrats have a right to ask whether the former president is the spokesman of Republican policy or just an observer on the sidelines with no more influence in shaping party policy than any of a half-dozen other Republican leaders. Mr. Hoover's viewpoint tends to approximate that of Senator Taft.

What Mr. Hoover says in his speech will evoke the sharpest differences of opinion inside both political parties. It will, moreover, be challenged in Europe by both military and political leaders.

The essence of Mr. Hoover's comments is that contributions of American air and sea forces are adequate to protect the free world, that Europe isn't fearful of a Russian attack, that the Communists don't want to start a large-scale war anyway, and that the United States should not send any more troops to Europe unless the continental countries supply more ground armies. Here is the most pertinent excerpt from his speech:

"They (the western European nations) should realize the limit of our economic aid is this deterrent air and sea power and munitions. That, protected by this shield, we expect them on the basis of their performance in previous wars, and now with the aid of munitions from us, to realize that ground armies are Europe's own problem.

"We should state that we expect them to provide ground protection to our airfields within their boundaries. We should state that not only will we send no more ground troops, but that we expect they will rapidly relieve us of that burden except to protect our airfields outside the NATO countries. And they should be told that their delays leave our 250,000 European garrison in a most exposed position."

What will be diffcult to understand is the inconsistency in Mr. Hoover's contention, on the one hand, that the Russians are afraid to risk war in Europe and his insistence that the delays of the last two years in forming allied armies have left our 250,000 garrison in danger. No weight is apparently given by Mr. Hoover to the fact that an equilibrium of power has been attained in Europe which has deterred war on the continent and that to follow his recommendations might weaken that balance and bring on the very large-scale war he wants to see prevented. No small part of the balance is due to the armies of Yugoslavia and Turkey.

So far as Europe's "performance in past wars" is concerned, this has not been without considerable help from American ground armies in both world wars.

The assumption that air and sea power will be adequate to deter the Russians because we will be able "to concentrate a highly mobile striking force by air and sea" ignores the fact that, if Europe's land area is overrun, Russia's air power by operating from French and German coastal bases will present a serious threat to our air bases in North Africa and to our aircraft carriers operating in the Mediterranean and the Atlantic. While ultimately, in a long-drawn-out war, air and sea forces can be very decisive factors, more important is what happens on the ground—as the Korean experience reveals.

Th theory that our air and sea forces can drop bombs on the French, German and Italian population if the Russian ground armies take possession is not one that is inviting to any military man. It tends to cause the Europeans to try "neutrality." In the end, of course, a war can be won by starting again from North Africa and the coast of England but, in the business of deterring or preventing war, it is much better to make secure the big bases on the European continent itself. Only ground armies can do that.

Mr. Hoover's speech will not aid the cause of unity in Europe. It will not make General Eisenhower's task any easier. Naturally the former President wants to prod European countries into more cooperation on the matter of ground troops and his objective is a patriotic one, but it remains questionable whether the way to encourage Europe is to issue an ultimatum saying America will not send any further troops and is only halfheartedly interested in sending ground troops anyway. Had America taken this position either in 1917 or in 1941, the enemy would have won.

Air power and sea power are tremendously effective but the foot soldier has to win the battle in the final analysis. The side which doesn't have adequate ground armies starts with a handicap that means a long, long war and many, many casualties.

To argue that Russia probably doesn't intend to fight doesn't solve the problem, because military strategy cannot be based on wishful guessing. It must be based on a readiness to meet the enemy regardless of which of many possible objectives he suddenly decides to try to fulfill. The words "air power" and "sea power" are correct descriptions of two of our armed services, but "war power" has to be viewed in its entirety whenever and wherever its effectiveness is to be fully measured.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Frankfurt — The grand headquarters of the Office of Public Affairs of the high commission for the government of Germany, is firmly established in the great new capitol at Bonn. This is the first actual acknowledged propaganda bureau that we have ever operated as a department of government.

There is a branch of this bureau, in the I. G. Farben building in Frankfurt, directed by Bobby Lochner, a precocious and brilliant young American who has spent most of his life in Germany, being the son of Louis Lochner, who served twenty years as Associated Press correspondent in Berlin. Louis Lochner resigned instead of waiting for retirement, for which he would have been eligible soon, because he thought he had been given a raw deal by Kent Cooper, the chief executive. Mr. Cooper writes love songs as an avocation, which belie his reputation with some of the slaves.

Bobby Lochner was General Clay's interpreter during many difficult conferences, and if it could be assumed that he was politically objective he would seem to be an ideal man for his job, assuming that there is any reason why the job should exist at all. I've no reason to assume he's politically objective or insensitive, however, because this has been a political administration from the start and a man in such a good job, with continuity of employment at high salary and perhaps even a career at stake, is almost certain to be a member of the machine.

This machine of this military government is now transformed into a colonial bureaucracy. This ssytem of Kangaroo courts, making up its own laws as Hitler did, and this new civil administration under a high commissioner with a colonial cabinet, are not American institutions in the broad sense. They never were from the day when Eisenhower pulled back his victorious American fighting men from the rich eastern German farm lands which they had captured and abandoned all that treasure to Russia. This network of institutions has been and remains a partisan political patronage machine. A patronage colony planted far from the eyes and nostrils of the American people. Americans here speak with biting cynicism of the things which "of course, the American papers never will publish." And the truth of it is that American papers never will. There is no legitimate excuse for the existence of an official American propaganda department even as an agency of a colonial outpost.

The Bureau of Public Affairs of the high commission for govern-

Q—What country formerly required that a man having a red flag should precede every automobile?

A — In the 1860's, England passed what are known as the Red Flag laws. These required that each steam carriage be preceded during the daytime by a man on foot carrying a red flag, and during the night by a man carrying a lantern. These laws were not repealed until 1896.

REALISM OF THE BUDGET

The $85,400,000,000 budget for the 1953 year submitted to Congress by President Truman is $14,400,000,000 more than the government can expect to take in for the year at present tax rates. Since leaders in Congress plainly do not intend to raise taxes in this election year, it is indicated that the budget must be trimmed or a sizable sum added to the national debt.

Congress may find trimming the budget almost as embarrassing a job in election year as passing new tax increases might be. Sincere legislators will be cautious about the military sections of the budget, by far the largest, lest defense by hampered by hasty or unwise economies. Cutting domestic expenditures always means courting the displeasure of particular interest groups which benefit directly from the questioned appropriation. In an election year members of Congress are not anxious to irritate voters.

In the final analysis the powers to tax and to spend lie with Congress. It is the duty of Congress to be certain that the taxes it imposes are fair and sufficient for operating the government. It must see that the budget is balanced whenever possible, and this can be done only by giving approval to a budget which is based on a realistic estimate of the amount of money available. Unless the President hopes for a change of heart in Congress regarding further tax increases this year, his budget is not realistic in that sense. Unless there is more cost-cutting than experienced observers expect, the final budget will not be much more realistic in its relation to income.

CIVILIAN BLOOD LINE FAILED

A dispatch from Tokyo by Edward Kennedy, Scripps-Howard correspondent, sets down a story that ought to be read with shame throughout this country.

It tells how a private, wounded on patrol, was brought to a forward hospital in Korea with one leg nearly shot off, his other foot shattered and an arm broken. He needed blood badly. But there wasn't any, because the civilian blood line from the home front had failed.

So four fighting soldiers from the front lines, who might themselves be struck down at any time by enemy fire, had to be pulled back to the hospital tent to give their blood in hope of saving their comrade.

Thirteen others from the wounded man's front-line regiment also gave their blood.

When the soldiers had each given a pint, they returned to their foxholes and bunkers. As Kennedy put it:

"In the States you get coffee and cookies after you give a pint of blood. These men got a Chinese Communist attack for breakfast and they got shot at for lunch.

The wounded man's life was saved, though he lost a leg. And he's grateful that his buddies could be spared from the fighting front at the critical moment.

What this story tells about our performance on the home front could consume the space of several editorials. But is any comment really necessary?

The hats worn by Winston Churchill on his visit to America attracted much attention. Not many American men seem to wear hats distinctive enough to attract notice except when they are being tossed at the presidential ring.

Some critics of the government will heartily support the bill in Congress which would give the District of Columbia back to the state of Maryland. But there might be some doubt that the gift would be welcome.

The big question about a disarmament plan is whether it would be like the lifesaving stroke of the surgeon's scapel or the stabbing of an assassin's knife.

Spring is that time of year when gardeners wish for a species of seed which the birds would refuse to eat.

UNIVERSAL MILITARY SERVICE

The organization of a Garrison State involves social and political consequences and the diversion of men from their normal activities to military participation. Shifting youth from schools to camps, from free activities to regimented disciplines, during the early years of their lives, can produce permanent psychological ractions.

The present program for universal military service is an extraordinarily involved one, from which only the mentally and physically defective will be freed. All young men, 18½ years of age, fresh out of high school, are to be given a six months' pilot course in Universal Military Training.

About 1,200,000 come of age, that is 18½ years old, each year. Of this number, it is estimated that 400,000 will be unfit, leaving 800,000 for this program. Only the physically and mentally unfit, according to Pentagon standards, will be able to proceed directly from high school to college with some assurance of remaining there.

After a young man has served for six months in the pilot course, he will be put into the active reserve for one year and a half. This means that the young man might begin a course at college, but could be interrupted at any time by being called up to replace American troops in Korea, Malaya, Burma or Europe, without regard to his personal future. As, except in Korea, our troops mostly mark time, this enforced idleness, in uniform, is of great concern to those who fear its social consequences.

At any rate, according to this program, few ambitious young men would be able to enter college before they are 20 or 21 years of age. They would be 24 or 25 years old before they got their Bachelor's degree. Those who require graduate work, such as doctors, lawyers, engineers, technicians, would be close to 30 before they would be graduated.

Experience shows that many in the military service, out of boredom and loneliness, marry, often under circumstances and to persons that can only be regarded as unfortunate. This raises moral problems which permanently affect our society.

In the past, our youth were used in this way to defend their country for comparatively short periods of great national peril. This, however, is planned to be a permanent program, to be followed in peace as well as in war. Further, after a young man has given his two years to this service, he is to be put into the inactive reserve for a period of six years, the President apparently to have the right to shift individuals from the inactive to the active reserve at will.

Smart boys, that is, those who are brilliant in their marks, will be able to find ways to get an education. In this country, however, it has been experience that the most useful men are not always those who have been exceptionally smart as boys. The large reservoir of college graduates has been drawn upon to produce competent persons to do the multitude of tasks essential in an industrial society.

Already, as a consequence of World War II, this country is short of engineers, which is a serious matter for the future. Shortages also appear in many fields of scholarship in which the theoretical work is done, thus forming the basis for our amazing success in technical fields. Atomic fission is a product of the classroom and college laboratory as it is of engineering and industrial skill.

Recently, a number of religious leaders came to Washington for one of those orientation sessions which have become so customary since the war. This conference was called to consider the character guidance program for our troops.

UMT arose only in question time, and was not on the agenda among the clergymen and religious leaders present. These men have devoted their lives to moral issues and have had to deal with young people through the various stages of development. Also, some had even served as chaplains.

So far as I can learn, while the clergy were deeply moved by the broad nature of the discussion of moral problems, which, at this conference, transcended religious differences, many of them felt that UMT imperils both the young man and the country and is not wise for such a society as ours. It could defeat our civilization by making it militaristic. Such militarism, including universal military service, had devastating effects on Germany and Japan, both of which employed it, in one form or another.

Moral leaders, particularly the clergy, cannot concern themselves only with immediate, pressing political problems. Their responsibility is to think in terms of civilization and the relationship of man to it.

This is a subject that requires more than casual discussion and might well be made a campaign issue. Stalin is becoming more troublesome, in our domestic matters, than Hitler ever was.

That Body of Yours

THE ELECTROENCEPHALOGRAPH

One of the most forward steps in medicine is the encouragement given our research workers. For years, these patient investigators have not been able to give their whole thought and time to research work because they had to make a living—teaching, demonstrating, practicing medicine. Today, thanks to research foundations, some of these research workers are able to give their whole thought and time to research work and thousands are helped thereby.

For many years, our epileptics were treated by bromides which lessened the number and severity of attacks but left the patient depressed in spirit. All over the world research workers were studying epilepsy and learned that some "spells" were not true epilepsy but that barbiturate drugs would control true epilepsy if liquids and starch foods were reduced in amount.

Perhaps the crowning result of the study of epilepsy was the discovery of electroencephalography. The electroencephalograph has taken its place with the electrocardiograph, as it records the movements of the brain just as the electrocardiograph records the movements and rhythm of the heart.

The electroencephalograph tracings enable the physician to diagnose epilepsy and this was considered its only value in medicine, but, just as Drs. Banting and Best's discovery of insulin was valued for its control of diabetes, and insulin was later found to have many other uses, so the discovery of the electroencephalograph opened the way for other valuable uses to men.

In Archives of Industrial Hygiene and Occupational Medicine, published by the American Medical Association, Drs. J. L. Fetterman and V. M. Victoroff state that the electroencephalograph, working in with other clinical and laboratory surveys, can help in removal of persons from jobs they should not hold, measure mental capacity following a brain injury, detect latent or underlying seizures such as epilepsy, estimate the effect of environment and toxic (poisonous) agents on brain action, and separate hysterical from organic brain disorders. In law or medicolegal cases, it is of special value in determining mental capacity in testamentary cases, guilt in criminal cases, latent and actual brain damage in compensation cases, and malingering in law suits claiming total loss of vision, hearing and touch.

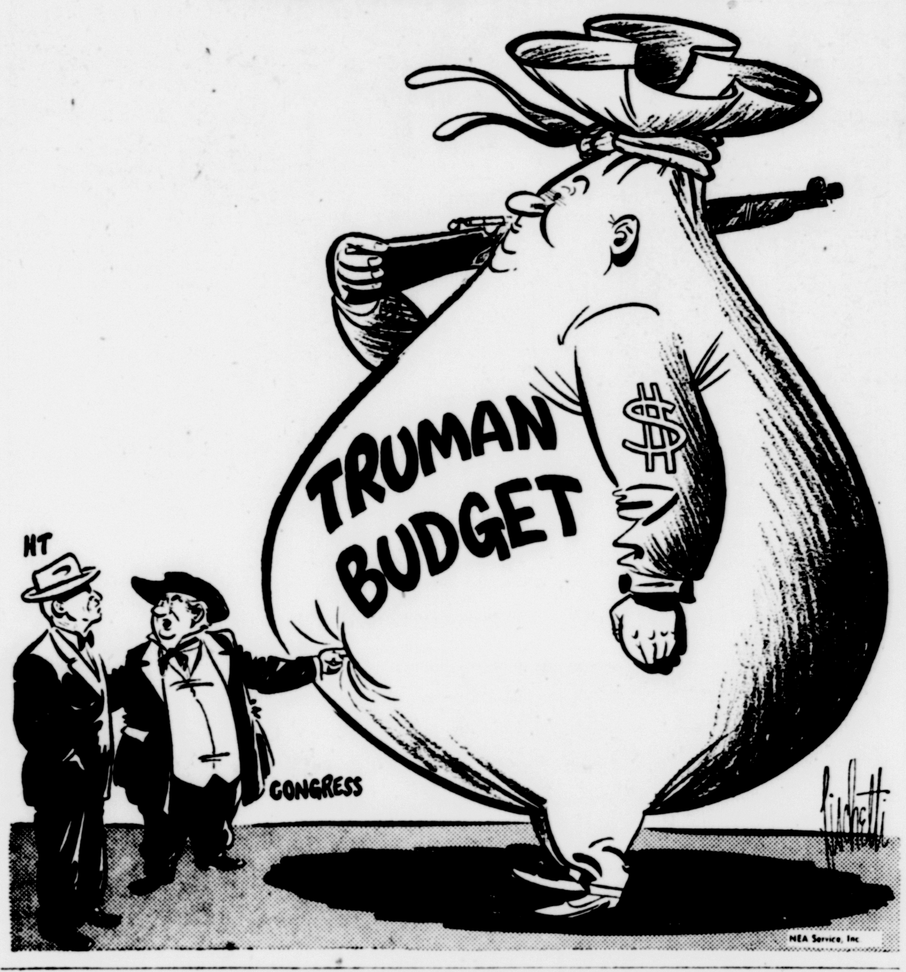

Drs. Fetterman and Victoroff propose encephalographic tests as an aid in the selection of those workers and executives whose alertness and clear consciousness is vital to safety and welfare of others, as in public transportation.

"I Know Muscle When I See It."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Editors Note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his daughter, Mrs. George L. Arnold, of Santa Monica, Calif.)

Washington, D. C.

Dear Daughter,

The house has seemed very empty ever since you kids left. I suppose I shouldn't call you kids anymore inasmuch as you're a grown up lady now with two sons of your own. But anyway it's been lonesome since you left. We packed up the electric train and put it in the attic till next Christmas when I hope you'll be back, and when little Drew will be able to operate it almost as much as his grandfather.

Only next time please don't fly. We almost held our breath until that plane got back to Los Angeles.

A lot of things have been happening since you left. Among others, Harry Truman has been trying to put me in jail again. Undersecretary of the Navy Whitehair tipped him off that I had written a column about a White House conference with General Bradley and he immediately blew his top.

The column had only been on the teletype to New York one hour when I began to hear about it.

The President was really mad. He stormed and raged and said he would throw me in jail. I can't begin to repeat his language, but it was pretty rough.

Finally he told General Bradley to get hold of me and kill the column.

However, when General Bradley read the column he didn't seem to think there was much wrong. He suggested only two changes, which I was glad to make.

Investigation Begins

The column was published on schedule as corrected, no military secrets were revealed, and so far I am still out of jail. But that didn't end the matter. Immediately afterward, the President ordered the FBI to make a superduper investigation of your old man, together with just about everyone I've ever talked to at the army or navy.

On top of this, Jim McInerney, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, (his boss, Howard McGrath doesn't like me) had the FBI contact some men who once worked for me and appealed to them to disclose my new sources. Naturally they didn't. They didn't know my sources in the first place and wouldn't have revealed 'em if they did.

The White House investigators then dug back into what I said in defense of General George Marshall when Senator McCarthy attacked him, and have been trying to find out where I got the material I used one whole year ago. I compared General Marshall's wonderful war record with McCarthy's failure to take part in any combat missions; so the investigators want to know where I got McCarthy's war record, which they say was supposed to be a complete secret.

Funny how the President now wants to protect one of his worst senatorial enemies and go after a newsman who defended his old friend Marshall. However, that's the way things are sometimes done around here these days.

However, I'm still out of jail, and if anyone has detected any pulling of punches as a result of all this, I hope my family will be the first to tell me.

Meanwhile, I went down to Reidsville, N. C., last week, to the only town where I was supposed to have spent some time in jail—aside from a short interim in a Siberian jail as the guest of the Soviet.

I don't know whether it's because a criminal always returns to the scene of a crime or whether the folks of Reidsville wanted to give their most famous alleged jailbird a home-coming reception. But anyway I went down to North Carolina and had a wonderful time.

Predawn Bath

P. W. Glidewell, the attorney who defended me against the charge of taking a sponge bath in the southern railroad yards at 3 a. m. After taking down a Chautauqua tent, introduced me to the Reidsville Chamber of Commerce where I spoke in the evening, and we had quite a time.

A lot of things have changed about Reidsville since that first memorable occasion when I was there. And I guess a lot of things have changed about your father, too. I was 16 then, just out of high school, and no one ever dreamed I would become the bete noir of certain politicians, least of all myself.

Reidsville was just a country village then, and its chief industry was Red Jay and Black Eagle chewing tobacco. Now that same tobacco factory turns out 180 million Lucky Strikes a day, and every morning the American Tobacco Company hands Uncle Sam a check for $800,000, as its daily cigarette tax.

Judge Ira Humphries, who acquitted me for taking the bath in the railroad yards, has retired now. And the court house where I was tried has been torn down. (Incidentally, your father was never actually put in jail—just held for an hour by a very courteous cop).

The welcoming committee drove me down to the railroad yards to try to find the spigot and the scene of the alleged crime, but we couldn't locate it. The town has changed too much.

Before the A-Bomb

In fact, it's become quite modern. There is an up-to-date Negro high school more modern than the white schools. And I saw a bluetile community swimming pool which should make impromptu bathing much easier—and less public. I also drove by the high-school grounds where we once pitched our Chautauqua tent. The old school is gone now and a modern one has taken its place.

It made me feel a little old to see how things had changed. Those were the good old simple days before the atom bomb, the days when William Jennings Bryan, then secretary of state, had time to get out and speak to the people on Chautauqua; the days when a lecturer didn't need a microphone and a loud-speaker. He used his lungs instead.

That was also the summer that the Archduke Franz Ferdinand was killed by a Serb assassin in a little town in Bosnia, thereby precipating World War 1 and a series of events which have made all our lives a lot more complicated ever since.

In those days, Reidsville was like most towns of America — clean rows of white comfortable cottages with wide verandas and hammocks where we once sat and held hands with good-looking girls on Saturday nights.

And, though things have changed a lot, there is one thing about this and the other small towns that hasn't changed—the people. Their understanding of the fundamental things of life remains unchanged and unspoiled by the complexities of modern civilization, and as long as we have this kind of people in America I am not too much worried about what's going to happen to my grandsons in the future. Give both of them a hug, and I hope to stay out of jail a little while longer.

YOUR FATHER.

Ripley's—Believe It or Not!

The Tragic Prophecy

Thomas Otway (1652-1685), English dramatist and poet, was at first an actor. He quit the stage when he dreamed that he would choke on a role. He lived in extreme poverty and one day emerged from his den to beg for food. He asked a passerby to give him a shilling. He was recognized and given a guinea (21 shillings). The overjoyed poet rushed to a bakery to buy some rolls. But he was so famished that he choked to death on the first roll. Thus the prophetic dream, with a slight deviation in spelling, became literally true.

Hoover's Speech Is Described as Driving Wedge Between Taft, Eisenhower

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 29—Herbert Hoover's speech on world affairs is bound to increase the confusion inside the Republican party and serve to drive a wedge between the views of General Eisenhower and those of Senator Taft.

For the Democrats have a right to ask whether the former president is the spokesman of Republican policy or just an observer on the sidelines with no more influence in shaping party policy than any of a half-dozen other Republican leaders. Mr. Hoover's viewpoint tends to approximate that of Senator Taft.

What Mr. Hoover says in his speech will evoke the sharpest differences of opinion inside both political parties. It will, moreover, be challenged in Europe by both military and political leaders.

The essence of Mr. Hoover's comments is that contributions of American air and sea forces are adequate to protect the free world, that Europe isn't fearful of a Russian attack, that the Communists don't want to start a large-scale war anyway, and that the United States should not send any more troops to Europe unless the continental countries supply more ground armies. Here is the most pertinent excerpt from his speech:

"They (the western European nations) should realize the limit of our economic aid is this deterrent air and sea power and munitions. That, protected by this shield, we expect them on the basis of their performance in previous wars, and now with the aid of munitions from us, to realize that ground armies are Europe's own problem.

"We should state that we expect them to provide ground protection to our airfields within their boundaries. We should state that not only will we send no more ground troops, but that we expect they will rapidly relieve us of that burden except to protect our airfields outside the NATO countries. And they should be told that their delays leave our 250,000 European garrison in a most exposed position."

What will be diffcult to understand is the inconsistency in Mr. Hoover's contention, on the one hand, that the Russians are afraid to risk war in Europe and his insistence that the delays of the last two years in forming allied armies have left our 250,000 garrison in danger. No weight is apparently given by Mr. Hoover to the fact that an equilibrium of power has been attained in Europe which has deterred war on the continent and that to follow his recommendations might weaken that balance and bring on the very large-scale war he wants to see prevented. No small part of the balance is due to the armies of Yugoslavia and Turkey.

So far as Europe's "performance in past wars" is concerned, this has not been without considerable help from American ground armies in both world wars.

The assumption that air and sea power will be adequate to deter the Russians because we will be able "to concentrate a highly mobile striking force by air and sea" ignores the fact that, if Europe's land area is overrun, Russia's air power by operating from French and German coastal bases will present a serious threat to our air bases in North Africa and to our aircraft carriers operating in the Mediterranean and the Atlantic. While ultimately, in a long-drawn-out war, air and sea forces can be very decisive factors, more important is what happens on the ground—as the Korean experience reveals.

Th theory that our air and sea forces can drop bombs on the French, German and Italian population if the Russian ground armies take possession is not one that is inviting to any military man. It tends to cause the Europeans to try "neutrality." In the end, of course, a war can be won by starting again from North Africa and the coast of England but, in the business of deterring or preventing war, it is much better to make secure the big bases on the European continent itself. Only ground armies can do that.

Mr. Hoover's speech will not aid the cause of unity in Europe. It will not make General Eisenhower's task any easier. Naturally the former President wants to prod European countries into more cooperation on the matter of ground troops and his objective is a patriotic one, but it remains questionable whether the way to encourage Europe is to issue an ultimatum saying America will not send any further troops and is only halfheartedly interested in sending ground troops anyway. Had America taken this position either in 1917 or in 1941, the enemy would have won.

Air power and sea power are tremendously effective but the foot soldier has to win the battle in the final analysis. The side which doesn't have adequate ground armies starts with a handicap that means a long, long war and many, many casualties.

To argue that Russia probably doesn't intend to fight doesn't solve the problem, because military strategy cannot be based on wishful guessing. It must be based on a readiness to meet the enemy regardless of which of many possible objectives he suddenly decides to try to fulfill. The words "air power" and "sea power" are correct descriptions of two of our armed services, but "war power" has to be viewed in its entirety whenever and wherever its effectiveness is to be fully measured.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Frankfurt — The grand headquarters of the Office of Public Affairs of the high commission for the government of Germany, is firmly established in the great new capitol at Bonn. This is the first actual acknowledged propaganda bureau that we have ever operated as a department of government.

There is a branch of this bureau, in the I. G. Farben building in Frankfurt, directed by Bobby Lochner, a precocious and brilliant young American who has spent most of his life in Germany, being the son of Louis Lochner, who served twenty years as Associated Press correspondent in Berlin. Louis Lochner resigned instead of waiting for retirement, for which he would have been eligible soon, because he thought he had been given a raw deal by Kent Cooper, the chief executive. Mr. Cooper writes love songs as an avocation, which belie his reputation with some of the slaves.

Bobby Lochner was General Clay's interpreter during many difficult conferences, and if it could be assumed that he was politically objective he would seem to be an ideal man for his job, assuming that there is any reason why the job should exist at all. I've no reason to assume he's politically objective or insensitive, however, because this has been a political administration from the start and a man in such a good job, with continuity of employment at high salary and perhaps even a career at stake, is almost certain to be a member of the machine.

This machine of this military government is now transformed into a colonial bureaucracy. This ssytem of Kangaroo courts, making up its own laws as Hitler did, and this new civil administration under a high commissioner with a colonial cabinet, are not American institutions in the broad sense. They never were from the day when Eisenhower pulled back his victorious American fighting men from the rich eastern German farm lands which they had captured and abandoned all that treasure to Russia. This network of institutions has been and remains a partisan political patronage machine. A patronage colony planted far from the eyes and nostrils of the American people. Americans here speak with biting cynicism of the things which "of course, the American papers never will publish." And the truth of it is that American papers never will. There is no legitimate excuse for the existence of an official American propaganda department even as an agency of a colonial outpost.

The Bureau of Public Affairs of the high commission for govern-

Q—What country formerly required that a man having a red flag should precede every automobile?

A — In the 1860's, England passed what are known as the Red Flag laws. These required that each steam carriage be preceded during the daytime by a man on foot carrying a red flag, and during the night by a man carrying a lantern. These laws were not repealed until 1896.

Insurance Firms Refuse Payment on Hurley Fire Loss

The action brought by Moe Schanzer of 245 Wall street, Kingston, to recover a total insurance of $19,993 for loss of his home at Hurley was brought in Supreme Court in Ulster county and not in Federal Court as recently reported. Joseph Avis appears for Schanzer in the action.

Schanzer insured his home in Hurley through the Daniel Shaw insurance agency of New Paltz and Shaw distributed the insurance among six of the insurance companies he represents, each company underwriting a $3,333 share of the total appraised value.

The building burned on June 10, with an estimated loss of $18,000 and an action was started in Supreme Court to recover when the insurance companies refused to honor the claim.

Recently insurance companies involved which are incorporated outside the state of New York petitioned Federal District Court in New York city to have the matter tried there on the grounds four of the companies involved are foreign corporations, having been incorporated outside the state of New York. They claim that due to the diversity of citizenship they are entitled to have the case transferred to Federal Court. The move to have the action transferred from Supreme Court in Ulster county to the New York court is opposed by Attorney Avis on the grounds that if the contention of the four companies is upheld it would mean any citizen insured in a foreign corporation would be required, in the event of a contested claim, to go to the expense of meeting trial in New York or some other distant point. This would bring about needless expense and delay and would work a hardship if such citizen is deprived of his right to trial in the county where he resides and where the loss occurred. He contends that the insurance companies are authorized to do business in the state of New York and that disputes in regard to claims arising in the state should be tried in the State Supreme Court.

Schanzer seeks recovery of $19,993 for his loss and brings the action against all six companies in which the Shaw agency placed the coverage.

UN Censure Hits

naming them as Maj. Gen. William C. Chase of the U. S. Formosa military mission, and Brig. Gen. John T. Cole of the U. S. military mission in Thailand (Siam.) The U. S. rejected this charge and the followup charges by the Soviet Union, and said that on the contrary the U. S. was trying to help Burma solve the problem of the Nationalists there by pressuring Chiang Kai-shek to disarm them.

The Burma government announced the presence of Chinese Nationalists in Burma as long ago as last May. It said Nationalists had regrouped in the eastern Shan Mountains after fleeing before the Communists in Yunnan Province, and that they were ready to join others in Burma. It appealed to the U. S. for diplomatic aid in removing the Nationalists.

Strikes Across Border

Last July a Chinese Nationalist force actually struck across the border into Red China from Burma, seizing a 100-mile frontier strip in Yunnan Province in a small-scale penetration. Some sources said the force numbered 15,000 regulars, commanded by Gen. Li Mi, the displaced Nationalist governor of Yunnan. Burmese officials said then that the troops had been supplied from Thailand, and the incident adversely affected U. S.-Burma relations, despite denials by the U. S. that Americans aided Li.

In Rangoon, the Burma government today denied a report that it had launched a campaign against Chinese Nationalist forces near the frontier.

In today's debate, before Malik spoke, U. S. Delegate John Sherman Cooper asked the Soviets if their charges of U. S. interference in southeast Asia meant the U.S.S.R. was actually planning aggression in the area herself. He denied "categorically and specifically" Soviet charges of U. S. activity with the Nationalists in Burma.

Nationalist China's delegate, T. F. Tsiang, in turn denied that the Chinese troops in north Burma were supported from Formosa, present seat of the Chiang government, and said they were operating as independent raiders, "similar to Garibaldi."

Malik claimed that the Chinese troops in Burma were being supplied by parachute drops from U. S. Constellation planes and said they are "girding for aggression under the leadership of American generals."

He labelled the troops a "shock force, armed to the teeth, which at any moment can provoke aggression."

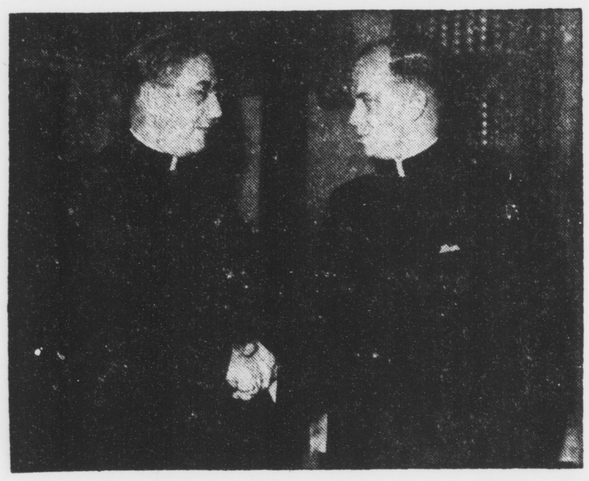

Bomber Crew Is Safe

Tokyo, Jan. 29 (AP)—The 13-man crew of a bomb-laden U. S. B-29 parachuted safely today just before the big bomber blew up in mid-air with a force that shook parts of Tokyo like an earthquake. The Korea-bound bomber, abandoned when it developed trouble shortly after the takeoff, disintegrated in a giant flash witnessed by thousands of homeward bound Tokyo workers. The wreckage fell in flames in an open area south of Tokyo. An information officer at the bomber's base said several of the 13 crewmen suffered slight injuries from jumping. They landed over a wide area. The last man was reported safe nearly four hours later.

Tobey Sees View

Taft forces, said the senator's name would be filed in the New Hampshire race sometime today. Entry by the Ohioan would be a direct challenge to Eisenhower in an area where the general's backers feel there is a good deal of Eisenhower sentiment.

Another challenge there is expected today from Harold E. Stassen, whose friends said they were ready to enter his name. Stassen, president-on-leave of the University of Pennsylvania, is an announced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

Tomorrow Is Deadline

Tomorrow is the deadline for filing in the presidential preference phase of the New Hampshire contest.

On the Democratic side, Senator Byrd of Virginia predicted that if President Truman runs for re-election, "he will be defeated by the Republican nominee." And Byrd says he feels sure Mr. Truman will run "if he thinks he can be elected."

Byrd and Mr. Truman long have been at odds over more than the President's controversial civil rights program, which is opposed by nearly all southern lawmakers. The Virginia senator has contended that much of Mr. Truman's "Fair Deal" domestic program is "socialistic" and would bankrupt the country.

Byrd is known to be lined up with other southern Democrats who plan to back Senator Russell of Georgia for the Democratic presidential nomination. Most members of the group concede, however, that the president can get the nomination if he decides to run.

Friends of Senator Kefauver of Tennessee—so far the only announced candidate for the Democratic nomination—said he has made it clear to them he would support the president for another term if Mr. Truman becomes the nominee.

Three 'Quakes

Manila, Jan. 29 (AP)—Three earthquakes were felt in the central Philippines today but no damage was reported.

Stock Car Racing

"It's all right with me," because the application of the club was only "a case of trying to get out of the red."

G. Warren Kias, athletic director of the local public schools, James E. Martin, 12th ward supervisor, Adelbert K. Kinkade, of 42 Hurley avenue, George B. Hinds, of 45 Plymouth avenue, and Howard I. Spaulding, of 169 Hurley avenue, spoke longest in opposing the races at the stadium.

Kias said he spoke first as a taxpayer and second as director of athletics in the city's schools, and declared "I am opposed to any outside agency exploiting the facilities of the city," and in this case particularly, he stressed, too much damage would be done to the stadium grounds.

Myers held that the contract with the company would guarantee that the grounds would be put back in shape in time for the high school spring events at the grounds and that money would be set aside for that purpose.

Kias said it would take $20,000 to recondition the grounds, and Myers said this was the amount which the club had figured on setting aside.

Supervisor Martin said the main doubt appeared to be whether the city could "assume a dubious risk of taxpayers' money in the furtherance of a straight business deal for the sole profit of a private business concern."

Myers indicated that if this meant that the promotors of the race was interested in profit, this was not always true and some of them have been known "to spend their own money," and it could work out so that the city has "all the profit."

Some Remarks Made

Besides the argument of Myers, made directly in behalf of the club, there were a few short remarks from the group more directly in favor of having the races in or near the city no matter where they were held.

Ruth Parslow, of 91 Broadway, who said she had been a professional roller skater, said she considered it a sad state of affairs "if the city on at least one day a week couldn't stand a little noise."

Howard Fox, of Grand View avenue, argued that stock car races have "a bad influence on teen-agers because they glamorize hot-shot drivers." He had seen it happen in California, he said, where after the races were held in the desert, the teen-agers held them "through the middle of the town."

George B. Hinds, the first to talk when the hearing opened, asked "Are these cars going to have mufflers?" Both Cullum and Myers said it had been promised they would," and to Hinds' question, "Who is going to pay," Cullum said the promotion would be underwritten.

Myers explained that there was a difference between what is known as a "wild cat" track and an insured track, and the one here would be an insured track. The grass on the grounds, he said, would not be ruined, because there would be "a penalty against a driver going on the grass."

Of Loud Speaker

Hinds said he didn't object as much to the noise of the motors as he did to the noise of the loud speaker, but he thought it possible that the club might have someone "who wouldn't go crazy with the loud speaker." Lots of nights during the ball games, he said, it was impossible to sleep.

John Carroll, of the Sixth ward, said he had attended stock car races at Rhinebeck and Poughkeepsie, and he felt, "They would be a great help to Kingston." A lot of money, he said, is going from this area to Poughkeepsie and Rhinebeck.

Howard Spaulding argued there was "no such thing as taking the noise out of stock car races." If they run with mufflers, he said, "there will still be a racket." He is a stockholder in the Kingston Baseball Club, he said, and he would like to see races in the area but they should be "on the flats somewhere."

Adelbert Kinkade, who said he had lived on Hurley avenue for a number of years, said it "is getting noisier than ever." He complained of the city's snow removal operations in the area, but stressed that where the ball games were concerned, the speaker was so loud that "you couldn't even hear yourself talk."

Residents of the area, he said were also unable to enjoy their radios on the nights of the games, and among those affected, he indicated, were old people in the area who were unable to attend and for whom he spoke.

Says Noise Is the Thrill

"The biggest thrill of the stock car races," he held, "is the noisiest motor there is." If it is necessary to prevent such races in the stadium he said, a petition will be circulated.

W. J. Blair of Plymouth avenue, said he was opposed because of the fireworks experience in the stadium. He had no objections to the races being held elsewhere, but he felt the speaker would be annoying. "We have a mother in our family who is 80 years old, and it gets her excited and worked up," he said, and added "Many are not familiar with the carrying power of the speaker."

Elbert Van Keuren, of Jansen avenue, asked if the audience "didn't think that Kingston could stand a little nonse." The races at Rhinebeck and Poughkeepsie, he said, drew from 4,000 to 4,500 a night. He indicated that many from this area attend those races and if they were held here "a lot of money would stay in the city."

"There's going to be noise the same as there is in carnivals," Van Keuren said. He contended that if races could be held successfully in "jerkwater towns," they would do well in Kingston.

Kias Cites Damage

Kias, who followed Van Keuren, said he was not opposed to stock car races as such, but when the hell drivers used the grounds "they tore the track up no end." It would be impossible to put the grounds in shape by the next spring after summer races, he held.

Stock car races, he found, were "dangerous and destructive," and he said he observed that most "spills" occur when the cars are coming out of a turn.

Cars go end over end as far as 250 feet. This might mean, he said, that a car might end up right in the stadium. Also he said the cars would dig right through the cinder track, "and I think it is a grave mistake to do this damage and then take a couple of years to make repairs." Kias said he felt also that the venture would not make enough money to put $20,000 aside for ground repairs, and he held that three stock car races within a 20-mile radius of the city would cut down attendance here.

Supervisor Martin, speaking of the proposal said: "The private business concern — incorporated solely to enrich its stockholders by the division of any profits accruing by reason of its operations — is not by the record, a good risk. It already stands convicted, over a period of several years, of an inability to meet its financial obligations."

Martin asked if there was any reason to believe "that they would leave the city holding the bag again for electricity, etc."

Might Become Swamp?

The city would risk damage to "a fairly fragile tile drainage system," in the grounds, he said, and declared: "I can envision the creation of a stagnant swamp in the stadium—or the expenditure of $40,000 or $50,000 of taxpayers' money" before the grounds would be suitable for sports. This, he said, could hamper athletics in local schools.

Newburgh and Poughkeepsie have not been interested in such a promotion as advocated here, he said. Inquiries elsewhere indicated that the noise, fumes and other hazards are a community menace, he held, and "I believe the councilmen would be guilty of repudiating their oaths were they to permit this project, and would be held strictly accountable by proper legal authority."

The council is responsible by the city charter for peace and good order in the community, he held, and he concluded, "I sincerely believe that you can best serve your own interests and the interests of all the people of the city of Kingston—as contrasted to the selfish interests of a private business corporation—by refusing permission for anyone to involve the city in risky and unfavorable gambles."

Answers to inquiries at the session indicated that stock cars travel at from 45 to 50 miles an hour, that there would be a protective fence here, but one opponent said that he knew of a car hurtling over a six foot hurricane fence at Altamont.

"A" is the first letter in all alphabets of the world except the Ethiopian.

Insurance Firms Refuse Payment on Hurley Fire Loss

The action brought by Moe Schanzer of 245 Wall street, Kingston, to recover a total insurance of $19,993 for loss of his home at Hurley was brought in Supreme Court in Ulster county and not in Federal Court as recently reported. Joseph Avis appears for Schanzer in the action.

Schanzer insured his home in Hurley through the Daniel Shaw insurance agency of New Paltz and Shaw distributed the insurance among six of the insurance companies he represents, each company underwriting a $3,333 share of the total appraised value.

The building burned on June 10, with an estimated loss of $18,000 and an action was started in Supreme Court to recover when the insurance companies refused to honor the claim.

Recently insurance companies involved which are incorporated outside the state of New York petitioned Federal District Court in New York city to have the matter tried there on the grounds four of the companies involved are foreign corporations, having been incorporated outside the state of New York. They claim that due to the diversity of citizenship they are entitled to have the case transferred to Federal Court. The move to have the action transferred from Supreme Court in Ulster county to the New York court is opposed by Attorney Avis on the grounds that if the contention of the four companies is upheld it would mean any citizen insured in a foreign corporation would be required, in the event of a contested claim, to go to the expense of meeting trial in New York or some other distant point. This would bring about needless expense and delay and would work a hardship if such citizen is deprived of his right to trial in the county where he resides and where the loss occurred. He contends that the insurance companies are authorized to do business in the state of New York and that disputes in regard to claims arising in the state should be tried in the State Supreme Court.

Schanzer seeks recovery of $19,993 for his loss and brings the action against all six companies in which the Shaw agency placed the coverage.

UN Censure Hits

naming them as Maj. Gen. William C. Chase of the U. S. Formosa military mission, and Brig. Gen. John T. Cole of the U. S. military mission in Thailand (Siam.) The U. S. rejected this charge and the followup charges by the Soviet Union, and said that on the contrary the U. S. was trying to help Burma solve the problem of the Nationalists there by pressuring Chiang Kai-shek to disarm them.

The Burma government announced the presence of Chinese Nationalists in Burma as long ago as last May. It said Nationalists had regrouped in the eastern Shan Mountains after fleeing before the Communists in Yunnan Province, and that they were ready to join others in Burma. It appealed to the U. S. for diplomatic aid in removing the Nationalists.

Strikes Across Border

Last July a Chinese Nationalist force actually struck across the border into Red China from Burma, seizing a 100-mile frontier strip in Yunnan Province in a small-scale penetration. Some sources said the force numbered 15,000 regulars, commanded by Gen. Li Mi, the displaced Nationalist governor of Yunnan. Burmese officials said then that the troops had been supplied from Thailand, and the incident adversely affected U. S.-Burma relations, despite denials by the U. S. that Americans aided Li.

In Rangoon, the Burma government today denied a report that it had launched a campaign against Chinese Nationalist forces near the frontier.

In today's debate, before Malik spoke, U. S. Delegate John Sherman Cooper asked the Soviets if their charges of U. S. interference in southeast Asia meant the U.S.S.R. was actually planning aggression in the area herself. He denied "categorically and specifically" Soviet charges of U. S. activity with the Nationalists in Burma.

Nationalist China's delegate, T. F. Tsiang, in turn denied that the Chinese troops in north Burma were supported from Formosa, present seat of the Chiang government, and said they were operating as independent raiders, "similar to Garibaldi."

Malik claimed that the Chinese troops in Burma were being supplied by parachute drops from U. S. Constellation planes and said they are "girding for aggression under the leadership of American generals."

He labelled the troops a "shock force, armed to the teeth, which at any moment can provoke aggression."

Bomber Crew Is Safe

Tokyo, Jan. 29 (AP)—The 13-man crew of a bomb-laden U. S. B-29 parachuted safely today just before the big bomber blew up in mid-air with a force that shook parts of Tokyo like an earthquake. The Korea-bound bomber, abandoned when it developed trouble shortly after the takeoff, disintegrated in a giant flash witnessed by thousands of homeward bound Tokyo workers. The wreckage fell in flames in an open area south of Tokyo. An information officer at the bomber's base said several of the 13 crewmen suffered slight injuries from jumping. They landed over a wide area. The last man was reported safe nearly four hours later.

Martin asked if there was any reason to believe "that they would leave the city holding the bag again for electricity, etc."

Might Become Swamp?

The city would risk damage to "a fairly fragile tile drainage system," in the grounds, he said, and declared: "I can envision the creation of a stagnant swamp in the stadium—or the expenditure of $40,000 or $50,000 of taxpayers' money" before the grounds would be suitable for sports. This, he said, could hamper athletics in local schools.

Newburgh and Poughkeepsie have not been interested in such a promotion as advocated here, he said. Inquiries elsewhere indicated that the noise, fumes and other hazards are a community menace, he held, and "I believe the councilmen would be guilty of repudiating their oaths were they to permit this project, and would be held strictly accountable by proper legal authority."

The council is responsible by the city charter for peace and good order in the community, he held, and he concluded, "I sincerely believe that you can best serve your own interests and the interests of all the people of the city of Kingston—as contrasted to the selfish interests of a private business corporation—by refusing permission for anyone to involve the city in risky and unfavorable gambles."

Answers to inquiries at the session indicated that stock cars travel at from 45 to 50 miles an hour, that there would be a protective fence here, but one opponent said that he knew of a car hurtling over a six foot hurricane fence at Altamont.

"A" is the first letter in all alphabets of the world except the Ethiopian.

Dog Rescued From River

Chicago (AP)—A man and a machine teamed up to rescue a dog from the Chicago river. The dog, wet and shivering, clung to a tiny speck of land at the bottom of a 25-foot bank. Arnold Glisch, a humane officer of the Animal Welfare League, arrived on the scene. A tow truck was backed up to the bank. Glisch fastened a steel cable about his waist and, as the line was paid out by the truck, he slid to the water's edge. Then the cable, operating in reverse, hauled up Glisch and the dog.

Teach Red Line

Hong Kong (AP)—The Shanghai Communist party newspaper Liberation Daily says special Communist party teachers are going to take over the political education of one million industrial workers in East China. Labor union commissars supposedly have been teaching the workers communism right along, but apparently it didn't take. The newspaper said "some of the workers still adopt an attitude of indifference."

are you CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE of the house heating season . . .

. . . with two and one-half months of shovelling, hauling and sweeping behind you and another three or four months ahead of you?

If so, you are probably calling yourself all sorts of names for not having installed automatic heat last spring or summer. And, by automatic heat, we mean CITY GAS — the only fully automatic house heating fuel!

But, there is no need to wait until the end of cold weather . . . to convert your present furnace to burn CITY GAS. Within a few short hours, the entire installation can be completed. Then you can bask in the luxury of never having to do more than turn a thermostat control to maintain an exact, even temperature throughout your home.

Your local heating man can tell you all about City Gas, fully automatic, house heating. So can the Central Hudson office in your locality. Why not call on one or the other? It costs nothing to get the facts.

Campaign Is Denied

Rangoon, Burma, Jan. 29 (AP)—A government spokesman denied today that Burmese troops had launched a campaign against Chinese Nationalist forces near the northern frontier with Communist China. Information Minister U Thant said there had been "occasional clashes" with the Nationalists, who were driven out of Yunnan province by the Chinese Reds in 1950. Queried about published reports that the government had announced a strong drive in the north, the information minister replied: "We have never announced such a campaign." He said there was nothing "extraordinary" in the recent clashes with the Nationalist forces.

Erection of new stables for White House horses cost $20,000 in the administration of President Pierce.

Snowfall Is Ended

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—A two-inch snowfall of nearly 12 hours came to an end in New York city at 12:15 a. m. tonight. The skies were clear during the early morning hours, and fair weather was expected to continue through today and tomorrow. Flight operations at LaGuardia Field, hampered by low visibility and low ceiling yesterday, were normal by 3 a. m. today. At the United States Weather Station on Bear Mountain, in Rockland county, the recorded low temperature for the night was 7.8 degrees and the snowfall measured 2.3 inches. All state, county and town road crews in Rockland county worked throughout the night sanding roads.

With fewer than 2500 inhabitants, Carson City, Nev., is the smallest state capital in the United States.

Campaign Is Denied

Rangoon, Burma, Jan. 29 (AP)—A government spokesman denied today that Burmese troops had launched a campaign against Chinese Nationalist forces near the northern frontier with Communist China. Information Minister U Thant said there had been "occasional clashes" with the Nationalists, who were driven out of Yunnan province by the Chinese Reds in 1950. Queried about published reports that the government had announced a strong drive in the north, the information minister replied: "We have never announced such a campaign." He said there was nothing "extraordinary" in the recent clashes with the Nationalist forces.

Snowfall Is Ended

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—A two-inch snowfall of nearly 12 hours came to an end in New York city at 12:15 a. m. tonight. The skies were clear during the early morning hours, and fair weather was expected to continue through today and tomorrow. Flight operations at LaGuardia Field, hampered by low visibility and low ceiling yesterday, were normal by 3 a. m. today. At the United States Weather Station on Bear Mountain, in Rockland county, the recorded low temperature for the night was 7.8 degrees and the snowfall measured 2.3 inches. All state, county and town road crews in Rockland county worked throughout the night sanding roads.

With fewer than 2500 inhabitants, Carson City, Nev., is the smallest state capital in the United States.

Rabies Is Believed On Increase in 2 Towns in County

Apparently rabies is on the increase in the Towns of Plattekill and New Paltz. Farmers report they are seeing more foxes in these areas than were there a year ago. An increase in these animals will result correspondingly in an increase in the number of rabid foxes.

Earlier this month, a dog owned by a farmer in the Town of New Paltz was bitten while in a fight with a fox. Although the dog killed the fox, he was confined and later proven to have contracted rabies. Shortly after this, a farmer in the Town of Plattekill had several cows bitten by a rabid fox.

Dr. Gilbert F. Hoppenstedt, public health veterinarian in Ulster county, advises farmers in these areas to be on the lookout for dumb-acting foxes. He emphasizes the importance of having all dogs vaccinated to reduce the possibility of spreading the disease to humans. This way the farmer can protect himself, his family, and his livestock.

Vaccination of dogs has been the only thing to stop the spread of rabies.

Estimate Board Drops Its Efforts To Keep 3-Cent Tax

New York, Jan. 29 (AP) — The Board of Estimate has dropped efforts to keep the city sales tax at the present three per cent rate.

The plan now is to ask the legislature for continuance of the sales tax, after June 30, but at the original rate of two per cent. The cut in the sales tax in contingent on obtaining a satisfactory substitute.

The switch was announced yesterday as the board approved a supplemental fiscal aid program that would give the city a net increase of at least 89 million dollars in its annual revenues.

New taxes and increases in existing taxes are included in the program.

Bills to carry out the proposals are expected to be introduced in the legislature at Albany shortly.

The board of estimate previously had asked the legislature for 100 millions a year in new local county real estate taxes and $63,800,000 in additional state aid.

Business Tax Would Rise

In the program set yesterday, the gross business tax would rise from one-fifth to one-half of one per cent and produce an estimated 90 million dollars in revenue as compared to the estimated 60 million dollars yielded by the extra one per cent city sales tax.

In addition to the business tax increase, the board decided to ask the legislature for these items:

1. Raise the state tax on cigarettes one cent a package — the extra eight million dollars to be rebated to the city.

2. Increase the state gasoline tax from three to five cents a gallon from which the city's added share would be 20 to 25 million dollars.

Hotel Room Boost

3. Raise the tax on hotel rooms for transients from five to 10 per cent, with the city getting five million dollars more a year.

4. Levy a tax on overnight parking of automobiles in city streets, with the legislature setting the rate and the city getting 10 million dollars a year.

5. Increase the gross financial business tax from the present two-fifths of one per cent to two per cent, yielding 16 million dollars more a year to the city.

Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri and other city officials have estimated that the city will need at least 200 million dollars more in the fiscal year starting July 1. The current expense appropriations total $1,336,400,575.

Grand Jurors Are To Meet Monday

When the regular meeting is held Monday, Feb. 4, the Ulster County Grand Jurors Association will discuss a series of important matters, including bills before the state legislature and details concerning formation of the Federation of Grand Jurors Associations of the Hudson Valley.

President Thomas J. Murphy urges all members to attend the session in the Ulster county court house, Wall street, starting at 8 p. m.

The Ulster associaton and Orange County Grand Jurors Association are working in conjunction on the valley unit, and all reports concerning plans completed to date will be read at the meeting.

President Murphy has stressed on various occasions the importance of a Hudson valley federation and is looking forward to completion of arrangements on its formation.

Several bills now before the codes committee of the state senate and assembly will be explained by President Murphy and he is anxious for a full attendance of the membership so that all may have a part in discussing the proposed laws.

A nominating committee will be appointed at the meeting to arrange a slate of officers to be voted on at the May meeting.

Dues for 1952 are due and may be mailed to the secretary, Mrs. Anna M. Ashdown, 154 Foxhall avenue, whose phone is 4771-W.

Italy Needs Wheat

Rome (AP)—Italy will have to import 180,000 tons of wheat to meet the nation's requirements in 1952, according to year-end estimates. The major part, 110,000 tons, is expected to come from Italy's quota under the International Wheat Agreement. Other likely sources given in a recently published survey include: 20,000 tons from Russia, and 40,000 tons from Argentina.

As Pegler Sees It

ment in Germany is down for ten millions in Truman's budget. Nobody can say how much of this is going to be spent to counteract the Russian propaganda which is unfavorable to the United States, but absolutely true. Much of this propaganda is particularly offensive to Harry Truman and his party, while to honest Americans the offense lies in the facts themselves.

Shephard Stone, Mr. Lochner's chief in Bonn, occupied a large, commandeered German home near Frankfurt prior to his transfer to Bonn. His rank in the bureaucracy entitled him to have eight German civilians for servants, but I'm not informed whether he took the utmost advantage of the carpetbaggers' scale of privileges. I will inquire at Bonn where I hope I'll be more successful than I have been thus far in attacking the reticence of agents of the American Federation of Labor.

As I reported from Paris, Irving Brown, David Dubinsky's ambassador, repulsed my attempt to ask him about his credentials from the State Department, and here in Frankfurt I caught Harry Rutz, another such ambassador, in the commotion of packing to move to another base. However, when I asked him by phone whether he had ever enjoyed the free occupancy of a German home commandeered by our carpetbag forces, it seemed to me I took him off guard for he faltered and said he couldn't just remember but thought he probably had. I also asked whether he had enjoyed the government subsidy paid by American taxpayers in the form of fifteen cent gasoline. He said he probably had been allowed this privilege which was accorded to all the carpetbaggers. Of course, they all got a crack at the finest American groceries at cut rates, according to the system prevailing in London, Paris and other soft spots overseas, where the operation of grocery, candy stores and meatmarkets is a regular department of the diplomatic service. In the London naval headquarters a large sign invites bluejackets as well as officers to have their shoes shined free, and the phrase, "You never had it so good," is becoming historic like "Remember the Alamo" and "I did it for the wife and kiddies."

Knowing the AF of L had burrowed deep into the hide of the carpetbag administration, like the ticks which are draining the vitality of our American economy in Washington and ten thousand other centers of infestation, I asked Bobby Lochner about their dealings with his propaganda bureau. He said his office had distributed only two documents supplied by the AF of L, one a graphic map purporting to show the location of slave camps in Russia, the other a pamphlet condemning the Russian version of unionism as a farce and fraud ruled by the Kremlin and extolling the American version as a free association of workers for common benefit.

Rather vehemently I put it to Mr. Lochner that this document was a false representation intended to conceal from the workers of Germany and Iron Curtain countries the fact that the AF of L has been a haven and an operating base for many of the worst underworld racketeers of the last fifty years. That the union bosses extorted hundreds of millions from the workers for licenses to work on patriotic war projects. Additional countless millions have been extorted from corporations and from the taxpayers who have ultimately paid such costs. Mr. Lochner obviously knew almost no facts about unionism in the United States, but said that even so, these facts would present a negative picture to those workers to whom these appeals are addressed by the official agency of the carpetbag government at taxpayers' expense.

Heart Campaign Workers Listed

T. Jay Rifenbary, campaign chairman for Ulster county's Heart Fund during the month of February, said today that organization of volunteer campaign workers was almost completed and announced that the goal in the county had been set at $5,000.

"This sum," Chairman Rifenbary said, "is our proportion of the eight million dollars needed by the American Heart Association and its affiliates throughout the country to fulfill plans to combat diseases of the heart and circulatory system. In Ulster county activities supported by the 1952 Heart Fund will be education, research, and community services for those who are eligible and in need of them."

Serving with Chairman Rifenbary on the campaign committee are:

Denning, Mrs. Harry Cole; Esopus, Mrs. Joseph Stadt; Gardiner, Floyd McKinstry; Hardenburgh, Mrs. Claude Haynes; Hurley, Mrs. William McNamee; Kingston, Cecelia Goldpaugh; Lloyd, Stewart Schantz; Marbletown, Mrs. John Basten, Marlborough, Joseph J. 40,000 Shave Heads

New Delhi, India, Jan. 29 (AP)—More than 40,000 residents of Jodhpur city have queued before the barbers to have their heads shaved as a mark of mourning for their maharajah, killed in a plane crash Saturday. Reports from Jodhpur said thousands of others had to wait until today for the head-shaving. The city's 400 barbers were too exhausted to finish the job yesterday.

Estimate Board Drops Its Efforts To Keep 3-Cent Tax

New York, Jan. 29 (AP) — The Board of Estimate has dropped efforts to keep the city sales tax at the present three per cent rate.

The plan now is to ask the legislature for continuance of the sales tax, after June 30, but at the original rate of two per cent. The cut in the sales tax in contingent on obtaining a satisfactory substitute.

The switch was announced yesterday as the board approved a supplemental fiscal aid program that would give the city a net increase of at least 89 million dollars in its annual revenues.

New taxes and increases in existing taxes are included in the program.

Bills to carry out the proposals are expected to be introduced in the legislature at Albany shortly.

The board of estimate previously had asked the legislature for 100 millions a year in new local county real estate taxes and $63,800,000 in additional state aid.

Business Tax Would Rise

In the program set yesterday, the gross business tax would rise from one-fifth to one-half of one per cent and produce an estimated 90 million dollars in revenue as compared to the estimated 60 million dollars yielded by the extra one per cent city sales tax.

In addition to the business tax increase, the board decided to ask the legislature for these items:

1. Raise the state tax on cigarettes one cent a package — the extra eight million dollars to be rebated to the city.

2. Increase the state gasoline tax from three to five cents a gallon from which the city's added share would be 20 to 25 million dollars.

Hotel Room Boost

3. Raise the tax on hotel rooms for transients from five to 10 per cent, with the city getting five million dollars more a year.

4. Levy a tax on overnight parking of automobiles in city streets, with the legislature setting the rate and the city getting 10 million dollars a year.

5. Increase the gross financial business tax from the present two-fifths of one per cent to two per cent, yielding 16 million dollars more a year to the city.

Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri and other city officials have estimated that the city will need at least 200 million dollars more in the fiscal year starting July 1. The current expense appropriations total $1,336,400,575.

Italy Needs Wheat

Rome (AP)—Italy will have to import 180,000 tons of wheat to meet the nation's requirements in 1952, according to year-end estimates. The major part, 110,000 tons, is expected to come from Italy's quota under the International Wheat Agreement. Other likely sources given in a recently published survey include: 20,000 tons from Russia, and 40,000 tons from Argentina.

As Pegler Sees It

ment in Germany is down for ten millions in Truman's budget. Nobody can say how much of this is going to be spent to counteract the Russian propaganda which is unfavorable to the United States, but absolutely true. Much of this propaganda is particularly offensive to Harry Truman and his party, while to honest Americans the offense lies in the facts themselves.

Shephard Stone, Mr. Lochner's chief in Bonn, occupied a large, commandeered German home near Frankfurt prior to his transfer to Bonn. His rank in the bureaucracy entitled him to have eight German civilians for servants, but I'm not informed whether he took the utmost advantage of the carpetbaggers' scale of privileges. I will inquire at Bonn where I hope I'll be more successful than I have been thus far in attacking the reticence of agents of the American Federation of Labor.

As I reported from Paris, Irving Brown, David Dubinsky's ambassador, repulsed my attempt to ask him about his credentials from the State Department, and here in Frankfurt I caught Harry Rutz, another such ambassador, in the commotion of packing to move to another base. However, when I asked him by phone whether he had ever enjoyed the free occupancy of a German home commandeered by our carpetbag forces, it seemed to me I took him off guard for he faltered and said he couldn't just remember but thought he probably had. I also asked whether he had enjoyed the government subsidy paid by American taxpayers in the form of fifteen cent gasoline. He said he probably had been allowed this privilege which was accorded to all the carpetbaggers. Of course, they all got a crack at the finest American groceries at cut rates, according to the system prevailing in London, Paris and other soft spots overseas, where the operation of grocery, candy stores and meatmarkets is a regular department of the diplomatic service. In the London naval headquarters a large sign invites bluejackets as well as officers to have their shoes shined free, and the phrase, "You never had it so good," is becoming historic like "Remember the Alamo" and "I did it for the wife and kiddies."

Knowing the AF of L had burrowed deep into the hide of the carpetbag administration, like the ticks which are draining the vitality of our American economy in Washington and ten thousand other centers of infestation, I asked Bobby Lochner about their dealings with his propaganda bureau. He said his office had distributed only two documents supplied by the AF of L, one a graphic map purporting to show the location of slave camps in Russia, the other a pamphlet condemning the Russian version of unionism as a farce and fraud ruled by the Kremlin and extolling the American version as a free association of workers for common benefit.

Rather vehemently I put it to Mr. Lochner that this document was a false representation intended to conceal from the workers of Germany and Iron Curtain countries the fact that the AF of L has been a haven and an operating base for many of the worst underworld racketeers of the last fifty years. That the union bosses extorted hundreds of millions from the workers for licenses to work on patriotic war projects. Additional countless millions have been extorted from corporations and from the taxpayers who have ultimately paid such costs. Mr. Lochner obviously knew almost no facts about unionism in the United States, but said that even so, these facts would present a negative picture to those workers to whom these appeals are addressed by the official agency of the carpetbag government at taxpayers' expense.

High Style With a Practical Air

By GAILE DUGAS,
NEA Woman's Editor

New York — (NEA) — Though the fashions worn by stars in their movie roles are always interesting to women, they're not always the kind of clothes that the average American woman can picture herself as wearing.

This, of course, is understandable. Women like to see stars wearing clothes that have sparkle. They enjoy seeing fabulous furs and jewels.

But studio fan mail shows that women also like to see, on the screen, clothes which they could wear without change or adaptation.

Designer Charles LeMaire has done just such a wardrobe for actress Susan Hayward in her role as singer Jane Froman in the forthcoming motion picture, "With a Song in My Heart." Though the evening gowns are necessarily dramatic, the daytime fashions are highly wearable.

A silk suit, for instance, in spring print of powder blue-and-white, is the kind of suit that American women love. White silk pique makes the lapels, finished at one side in a huge bow. Waistline is clearly defined, skirt is slim.

A slim dress in navy wool crepe buttons from neck to hem with bone buttons, has turnover collar and cuffs in frosty white hand-drawn linen. Again, an American classic.

In making a simple belted coat for Miss Hayward, LeMaire gave it new interest through use of a heavy oyster-white raw silk. He lined the coat in silk shantung printed in black, oyster-white and yellow and gave it a matching ascot scarf.

A highly wearable afternoon dress in deep leaf-green silk has accents of light green silk in polka-dotted trim at bow-tied neckline, at sleeves and as edging on the overskirt. This overskirt is split into front panels to reveal the slim-lined skirt beneath.

Good Taste Today

FIRST WIFE'S PORTRAIT

Today's first letter presents a very difficult problem: "I have just recently married a widower. He has a very large portrait of his first wife hanging in the living room which I resent very much. Am I being unreasonable in asking that it be removed to a less conspicuous place, or put it out of sight entirely?

This is a very unhappy question, especially if the first wife's children live with their father. In this case a request for the removal of their mother's portrait is likely to be the beginning of the end of the second marriage. I do think it unreasonable, however, to hang it in the living room where you spend practically all of your time. In my opinion the best place to hang such a portrait would be in the front hall. On the other hand, if there are no children and the first wife was not an ever-increasing ideal in the heart of your husband, you could very well insist that it be given to a member of her family.

Telephone Interruptions

Dear Mrs. Post: It seems that just as we sit down to dinner at night it is a signal for the telephone to ring, and, of course, I get up to answer it. My husband gets very annoyed at having his dinner delayed and thinks that I should explain to whoever it is that we are eating dinner. Don't you think this is rude?

Answer: Not rude at all. If the conversation threatens to run to any length, you can and should offer to call the person back later.

Have you given yourself an etiquette test lately? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-18 includes a list of questions frequently asked along with the answers. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

U. S. Men Preferred By American Girls

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP Women's Editor)

American girls in Paris have a wonderful time, but they always come back and marry U. S. men.

So says pretty Julie Smith, a girl from Buffalo, N. Y., who went to Paris for a vacation four years ago and has been there ever since.

Back for a flying visit in the good old U. S. A., Julie reveals she improved her spare time in the French capital by writing a novel, Cakes and Male, which naturally is all about American girls in Paris.

Julie can speak from first-hand knowledge, having had a succession of highly exciting jobs during her stay abroad. When she first decided Paris would be a nice place to stay, she got a job as radio writer for UNESCO. Later she worked as Paris correspondent for the Chicago Tribune, then ran her own publicity office for a while and for the last year has been public relations representative in France for an American airline.

Gets New Position

Now this slight, blonde young lady has been appointed to a job that would turn most girls green with envy. She is to be roving representative for her firm, traveling to all the airline's offices in Europe, dividing her time between such places as London, Paris, Helsinki, Rome, Vienna and Berlin.

Despite the glamor of her various jobs, Julie says:

"It's wonderful to get back to an American hairdresser. In Paris they give you one of two hairdoes—Joan or Arc or Napoleon. I've been Napoleon lately.

Replenishing Wardrobe

Julie also allows it's nice to have enough heat again, to ride in elevators that work, and to buy all the nylon stockings she wants.

Believe it or not, she also is glad to get back to New York shops, after being exposed to the Paris haute couture. She explains:

"Unless you're loaded with money, it's difficult to buy smart clothes in Paris. Either you go to the famous dressmakers and mortgage the old family homestead to pay for a dress, or you buy material and hunt up a little seamstress to make it up into a garment. There is nothing in between."

Then They're Gorgeous

The average French working girl is not as well-dressed as the average American stenographer or secretary, says Julie. But every French girl usually has one extra-special dress which she wears for festive occasions—and then she is strictly a knockout.

Julie solved her own personal clothes problem by getting a job representing some of the top couture houses in Paris, but she's still happy to be able to pick up a smart, pretty dress for $25, ready-made. And she intends to buy some American shoes while she's here, too.

Nylon lingerie is another thing practically impossible to find in France, says Julie and such garments are required equipment for a globetrotter.

All in all, Julie, lately of Vassar College and Buffalo, is enjoying renewal of acquaintance with the land of the free and the home of the brave—just as a breather, of course, before she starts cloud-hopping again. One thing, however, is sure:

"When I'm ready to get married, it's going to be a genuine U. S. male."

Convertible collar is wide; skirt is very full. For small girls, there's a companion check-and-plaid gingham in a sundress (right) topped by a bolero. New York — (NEA) — High style, adapted to the freshness of youth, is the keynote of a new cotton collection done by two Dallas designers, Betti Terrell and Clyde Heard.

These clothes, for spring and Easter, have a kind of sophistication that's based on shining simplicity. They're very different from the demure little dress that's been classic for small fry.

A tiny sun dress, for sizes three to six, has its own small bolero jacket. The jacket has white pique collar and cuffs trimmed with removable black velvet bows; it makes the dress right for Sunday school wear. With jacket off, the dress can go right to the beach.

A second dress for small girls, in tissue gingham, has the same kind of halter-type sleeve line seen in adult fashions. Navy elastic webbing nips in the waist, just as it does in grown-up styles.

For the sub-teen group, there are clothes with charming high style. In separates, sleeveless black tops are paired with harlequin printed skirts. Typical color combination for these skirts is black, chartreuse and white.

The linen duster turns up for Sunday school wear in washable linen-like rayon worn with detachable black velveteen scarf and miniature pouch bag, both trimmed in ball fringe.

There are other high style notes in this sub-teen group. The knitted midriff is shown here, too, and so is the knitted cuff to anchor the push-up sleeve. There are dolman sleeves, diagonal button placements and pockets that slash into the side fullness of skirts.

The small girl, walking in the Easter parade, can wear a white organdy dress that has a nest of colored buttons shaped like eggs on the pockets. The colors for these are the gay colors of Easter: pink, green, yellow and blue.

High-style pinafore (right center) is a dinner dress. Black organza pinafore printed in a white lace pattern is worn over high-necked, long-sleeved sheath of black organza and taffeta. Classic coat (far right) gets new styling in heavy oyster-white raw silk with lining and ascot scarf in black, oyster-white and yellow printed silk.

By GAILE DUGAS,
NEA Woman's Editor

New York — (NEA) — Though the fashions worn by stars in their movie roles are always interesting to women, they're not always the kind of clothes that the average American woman can picture herself as wearing.

This, of course, is understandable. Women like to see stars wearing clothes that have sparkle. They enjoy seeing fabulous furs and jewels.

But studio fan mail shows that women also like to see, on the screen, clothes which they could wear without change or adaptation.

Designer Charles LeMaire has done just such a wardrobe for actress Susan Hayward in her role as singer Jane Froman in the forthcoming motion picture, "With a Song in My Heart." Though the evening gowns are necessarily dramatic, the daytime fashions are highly wearable.

A silk suit, for instance, in spring print of powder blue-and-white, is the kind of suit that American women love. White silk pique makes the lapels, finished at one side in a huge bow. Waistline is clearly defined, skirt is slim.

A slim dress in navy wool crepe buttons from neck to hem with bone buttons, has turnover collar and cuffs in frosty white hand-drawn linen. Again, an American classic.

In making a simple belted coat for Miss Hayward, LeMaire gave it new interest through use of a heavy oyster-white raw silk. He lined the coat in silk shantung printed in black, oyster-white and yellow and gave it a matching ascot scarf.

A highly wearable afternoon dress in deep leaf-green silk has accents of light green silk in polka-dotted trim at bow-tied neckline, at sleeves and as edging on the overskirt. This overskirt is split into front panels to reveal the slim-lined skirt beneath.

Good Taste Today

FIRST WIFE'S PORTRAIT

Today's first letter presents a very difficult problem: "I have just recently married a widower. He has a very large portrait of his first wife hanging in the living room which I resent very much. Am I being unreasonable in asking that it be removed to a less conspicuous place, or put it out of sight entirely?

This is a very unhappy question, especially if the first wife's children live with their father. In this case a request for the removal of their mother's portrait is likely to be the beginning of the end of the second marriage. I do think it unreasonable, however, to hang it in the living room where you spend practically all of your time. In my opinion the best place to hang such a portrait would be in the front hall. On the other hand, if there are no children and the first wife was not an ever-increasing ideal in the heart of your husband, you could very well insist that it be given to a member of her family.

Telephone Interruptions

Dear Mrs. Post: It seems that just as we sit down to dinner at night it is a signal for the telephone to ring, and, of course, I get up to answer it. My husband gets very annoyed at having his dinner delayed and thinks that I should explain to whoever it is that we are eating dinner. Don't you think this is rude?

Answer: Not rude at all. If the conversation threatens to run to any length, you can and should offer to call the person back later.

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP Women's Editor)

American girls in Paris have a wonderful time, but they always come back and marry U. S. men.

So says pretty Julie Smith, a girl from Buffalo, N. Y., who went to Paris for a vacation four years ago and has been there ever since.

Back for a flying visit in the good old U. S. A., Julie reveals she improved her spare time in the French capital by writing a novel, Cakes and Male, which naturally is all about American girls in Paris.

Julie can speak from first-hand knowledge, having had a succession of highly exciting jobs during her stay abroad. When she first decided Paris would be a nice place to stay, she got a job as radio writer for UNESCO. Later she worked as Paris correspondent for the Chicago Tribune, then ran her own publicity office for a while and for the last year has been public relations representative in France for an American airline.

Gets New Position

Now this slight, blonde young lady has been appointed to a job that would turn most girls green with envy. She is to be roving representative for her firm, traveling to all the airline's offices in Europe, dividing her time between such places as London, Paris, Helsinki, Rome, Vienna and Berlin.

Despite the glamor of her various jobs, Julie says:

"It's wonderful to get back to an American hairdresser. In Paris they give you one of two hairdoes—Joan or Arc or Napoleon. I've been Napoleon lately.

Replenishing Wardrobe

Julie also allows it's nice to have enough heat again, to ride in elevators that work, and to buy all the nylon stockings she wants.

Believe it or not, she also is glad to get back to New York shops, after being exposed to the Paris haute couture. She explains:

"Unless you're loaded with money, it's difficult to buy smart clothes in Paris. Either you go to the famous dressmakers and mortgage the old family homestead to pay for a dress, or you buy material and hunt up a little seamstress to make it up into a garment. There is nothing in between."

Then They're Gorgeous

The average French working girl is not as well-dressed as the average American stenographer or secretary, says Julie. But every French girl usually has one extra-special dress which she wears for festive occasions—and then she is strictly a knockout.

Julie solved her own personal clothes problem by getting a job representing some of the top couture houses in Paris, but she's still happy to be able to pick up a smart, pretty dress for $25, ready-made. And she intends to buy some American shoes while she's here, too.

Nylon lingerie is another thing practically impossible to find in France, says Julie and such garments are required equipment for a globetrotter.

All in all, Julie, lately of Vassar College and Buffalo, is enjoying renewal of acquaintance with the land of the free and the home of the brave—just as a breather, of course, before she starts cloud-hopping again. One thing, however, is sure:

"When I'm ready to get married, it's going to be a genuine U. S. male."

The approach of the Vanderbilt Cup Tournament, which will begin in New York the night before Washington's Birthday, reminds me of several hundred hands played in this tournament in other years. One of the most amusing of these hands, played several years ago, is shown today.

West opened the deuce of hearts, East put up the queen, and South won with the king. Declarer saw that he needed two diamond tricks to make sure of his contract, so he led the ten of diamonds from his hand and let it ride for a finesse.

Sylvia Hazen, playing the East cards, unhesitatingly played the three-of diamonds instead of winning the trick with her queen.

South happened to be a well-known expert. He looked at West, and he looked at East. This got him nowhere. He knew that Lee Hazen, who was West, was a first-class player; but he didn't know anything about Mrs. Hazen's bridge game.

So South fell for the trap. He led another diamond from his hand and finessed again. This time Mrs. Hazen won with the queen, naturally enough. And now South couldn't make a second diamond trick even if he stood on his head.

The defenders had all the time in the world to develop five defensive tricks—two hearts, two diamonds, and a club. South had eight easy tricks but no play at all for a ninth.

South could have made his contract, of course, if he had played the king of diamonds from dummy on the second round of that suit. At least a dozen of his friends pointed out this fact to him at the end of the evening's play.

South's exasperated reply was a neat example of the left-handed compliment: "When they're young and pretty," he snorted, "I don't figure them to be smart too."

By the way, if you want to see exactly how smart it was to refuse that first diamond trick, try defeating the contract if East takes the queen of diamonds at once. The defenders can win two hearts and two diamonds, but they cannot stop South from developing the two diamond tricks he needs for his contract.

Communists Organize

Srinagar, Kashmir (AP) — Kashmir's small but well-knit Communist party is concentrating on the creation of cells or pockets among Kashmir students. Officials here said a procession of Srinagar students against "the British government's policy in Egypt" was Communist-dominated, and blamed the same left-wing organizations for a student strike against higher tuition in the state's schools.

The growing, transportation, distribution and sale of bananas combine to make one of the world's leading food industries.

Bills Proposed in Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—A pay raise of $570 a year for all state troopers was proposed today in the Legislature.

The measure—part of Governor Dewey's highway safety program—was introduced by Senator John H. Hughes and Assemblyman Lawrence M. Rulison, Syracuse Republicans.

The bill also would increase the starting salary of state police from $1,680 a year to $2,250.

The higher salaries are designed to attract more recruits to the undermanned force. It has an authorized strength of 900, but only has about 700 members.

Dewey also has called for an easing of the strict physical requirements for appointment to the force.

In other legislative developments:

1—Two Republican lawmakers proposed time and a half overtime pay for the state's civil service employes. The bill would establish a 40-hour, 5-day work week for state employes other than those in the Legislature and the judiciary. It was introduced by Senator Seymour Halpern of Queens and Assemblyman James A. Fitzpatrick of Plattsburgh.

2—The Assembly postponed, until Feb. 5 a vote on a bill to continue the Dewey administration's drastic, public-employe loyalty program for another year.

Flood Group Continues

3—The Senate unanimously passed a bill to continue until March 31, 1953, the temporary State Flood Control Commission, created to assist in a federal, long-range flood control program.

The Assembly postponement on the controversial loyalty bill came after protests from a Democratic assemblyman, who helped prosecute Alger Hiss.

The loyalty bill, enacted last year, permits speedy dismissal or transfer of suspected subversives from "security" jobs in state and local government.

Assemblyman Clarke S. Ryan of the Bronx, a former assistant U. S. attorney, argued that the law "lacked adequate procedural safeguards" to protect employes' rights.

He claimed the present law was "so poorly drafted that persons authorized to use it were afraid to use and didn't use it."

Lee B. Mailler, Assembly majority leader, directed that a vote be postponed until Feb. 5 to "permit us to study" the bill.

Hours on Pin Boys

Other bills would:

Permit 15-year-old pinboys to work in bowling alleys until 10 p. m., instead of the present 6 p. m. limit.

Require that all wooden and frame school buildings in New York city be replaced with fireproof buildings before Dec. 31, 1957. (Assemblyman William E. Glancy, D-Queens).

Increase the amount of liability insurance required of persons engaged in the business of transporting passengers; from $5,000 to $10,000 minimum and from $15,000 to $40,000 maximum for a seating capacity of not less than eight or more than 12; from $25,000 to $60,000 for those with not less than 21 or more than 30 passengers, and from $50,000 to $100,000 for those with more than 30 (Senator William F. Condon, R-Yonkers).

County Prepared To Train Residents For Atomic Attack

Ulster county is prepared to train its citizens to help save their own lives, those of their families and those of their neighbors in the event of an atomic disaster.

The first course for training in "Self-Help and Neighbor Help for the Injured" has recently been completed in Stone Ridge. The class was taught by Miss Anne C. Cassidy, public health nurse.

The recent graduates of the course in Stone Ridge are Eleanor Knudsen, Georgia Snyder, Doris M. Johnson, Mrs. Buddy Garlick, Margaret Elliott, Helen Pavlick, Karlton Bowers and Katherine Bowers.

In discussing the courses, Miss Cassidy said, "In the event of an atomic attack many lives will be saved and much suffering prevented if each adult knows what to do and what not to do during the first critical minutes after the disaster strikes."

"It is the objective of the course," she stated, "to provide every person in Ulster county, of high school age and upwards, with an opportunity to acquire the knowledge and skills that will enable him to care for himself, his family and his neighbors, during the period before medical help arrives."

The approach of the Vanderbilt Cup Tournament, which will begin in New York the night before Washington's Birthday, reminds me of several hundred hands played in this tournament in other years. One of the most amusing of these hands, played several years ago, is shown today.

West opened the deuce of hearts, East put up the queen, and South won with the king. Declarer saw that he needed two diamond tricks to make sure of his contract, so he led the ten of diamonds from his hand and let it ride for a finesse.

Sylvia Hazen, playing the East cards, unhesitatingly played the three of diamonds instead of winning the trick with her queen.

South happened to be a well-known expert. He looked at West, and he looked at East. This got him nowhere. He knew that Lee Hazen, who was West, was a first-class player; but he didn't know anything about Mrs. Hazen's bridge game.

So South fell for the trap. He led another diamond from his hand and finessed again. This time Mrs. Hazen won with the queen, naturally enough. And now South couldn't make a second diamond trick even if he stood on his head.

The defenders had all the time in the world to develop five defensive tricks—two hearts, two diamonds, and a club. South had eight easy tricks but no play at all for a ninth.

South could have made his contract, of course, if he had played the king of diamonds from dummy on the second round of that suit. At least a dozen of his friends pointed out this fact to him at the end of the evening's play.

South's exasperated reply was a neat example of the left-handed compliment: "When they're young and pretty," he snorted, "I don't figure them to be smart too."

By the way, if you want to see exactly how smart it was to refuse that first diamond trick, try defeating the contract if East takes the queen of diamonds at once. The defenders can win two hearts and two diamonds, but they cannot stop South from developing the two diamond tricks he needs for his contract.

Communists Organize

Srinagar, Kashmir (AP) — Kashmir's small but well-knit Communist party is concentrating on the creation of cells or pockets among Kashmir students. Officials here said a procession of Srinagar students against "the British government's policy in Egypt" was Communist-dominated, and blamed the same left-wing organizations for a student strike against higher tuition in the state's schools.

Bills Proposed in Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—A pay raise of $570 a year for all state troopers was proposed today in the Legislature.

The measure—part of Governor Dewey's highway safety program—was introduced by Senator John H. Hughes and Assemblyman Lawrence M. Rulison, Syracuse Republicans.

The bill also would increase the starting salary of state police from $1,680 a year to $2,250.

The higher salaries are designed to attract more recruits to the undermanned force. It has an authorized strength of 900, but only has about 700 members.

Dewey also has called for an easing of the strict physical requirements for appointment to the force.

In other legislative developments:

1—Two Republican lawmakers proposed time and a half overtime pay for the state's civil service employes. The bill would establish a 40-hour, 5-day work week for state employes other than those in the Legislature and the judiciary. It was introduced by Senator Seymour Halpern of Queens and Assemblyman James A. Fitzpatrick of Plattsburgh.

2—The Assembly postponed, until Feb. 5 a vote on a bill to continue the Dewey administration's drastic, public-employe loyalty program for another year.

Flood Group Continues

3—The Senate unanimously passed a bill to continue until March 31, 1953, the temporary State Flood Control Commission, created to assist in a federal, long-range flood control program.

The Assembly postponement on the controversial loyalty bill came after protests from a Democratic assemblyman, who helped prosecute Alger Hiss.

The loyalty bill, enacted last year, permits speedy dismissal or transfer of suspected subversives from "security" jobs in state and local government.

Assemblyman Clarke S. Ryan of the Bronx, a former assistant U. S. attorney, argued that the law "lacked adequate procedural safeguards" to protect employes' rights.

He claimed the present law was "so poorly drafted that persons authorized to use it were afraid to use and didn't use it."

Lee B. Mailler, Assembly majority leader, directed that a vote be postponed until Feb. 5 to "permit us to study" the bill.

Hours on Pin Boys

Other bills would:

Permit 15-year-old pinboys to work in bowling alleys until 10 p. m., instead of the present 6 p. m. limit.

Require that all wooden and frame school buildings in New York city be replaced with fireproof buildings before Dec. 31, 1957. (Assemblyman William E. Glancy, D-Queens).

Increase the amount of liability insurance required of persons engaged in the business of transporting passengers; from $5,000 to $10,000 minimum and from $15,000 to $40,000 maximum for a seating capacity of not less than eight or more than 12; from $25,000 to $60,000 for those with not less than 21 or more than 30 passengers, and from $50,000 to $100,000 for those with more than 30 (Senator William F. Condon, R-Yonkers).

Beverly Port Rolls 288-654 for New Marks in Women's Major League

Solo Is Pin Under All-Time Record Set by Sue Heins

Pounds Alleys 7 and 8, Scores 180-288-186

Rocket-throwing Beverly Port joined female bowling's Hall of Fame last night with a sensational 288 single and 654 triple in the Women's Major League at the Bowlodrome.

The 288 was a pin short of the all-time city record of 289 held by Sue Heins and shattered the seasonal high of 267 set last week by Betty Bruck.

Mrs. Port's 654 marked the first time she had ever rolled better than "600" in league competition. Her best previous high was 598. Her top single until last night was 265.

A pair of misses hobbled her to 180 in the first game, before she began to blister alleys 7 and 8. She was tapped on a slightly high hit, leaving the 6-pin, in the first frame. Then came a string of 10 consecutive strikes before she left the 8-10 (pocket split) on her last ball. She had 186 with two splits in the third game.

The big series elevated her into the "170" average class, from 168 to 172.33 for 36 games.

R. Schatzel Hits 604

A half dozen other keglerettes zoomed over the "500" mark.

Betty Schoonmaker just missed the "600" circle with 188-186-223—597; Charlotte Lapine fired 518; Marge Jansen 515; Ada Markle 216—511; and Rita LaRocca 535.

The Jones Dairy quartet, assisted by Beverly's big blast, came up with two new team records of 802 and 2176.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

DUSO League sports writers, including this one, who commented editorially on the circumstances surrounding Bob Laskowitz's stay in Fallsburg, while his parents have set up residence elsewhere, have been thoroughly castigated by Leon J. Weiss, superintendent, and Louis Blumberg, principal, of Fallsburg Central School.

Messrs. Weiss and Blumberg said in effect that the observations of the writers were a "scurrilous and malicious attack upon the ethics and conduct of the administration of the school athletics program," as well as being a "snide and unjustified" attack on Bob Laskowitz, personally.

The learned gentlemen point out that Robert Laskowitz has been registered in "our school system since September, 1949. Prior to that time his schooling had been in several different schools. When his parents found it necessary to move from our area, they were quite concerned about shifting Robert in his last year of school to a new situation. His mother came to Mr. Blumberg, our principal, discussed his remaining in the district under proper supervision and in a good home. Mrs. Laskowitz determined that the best place he could find was with one of our teachers."

"This particular procedure of parents leaving their children here to finish their high school careers is not unique in this instance," the letter continues. "Last year we had three such cases and one of these three was an athlete; the other was not. Therefore, we think that the insinuations in your articles are without foundation."

Since their letter was eminently fair, we presume that Messrs. Weiss and Blumberg will agree that in a free society such as ours, a difference of opinion should not be discouraged. In the eyes of the working press, the fact that Laskowitz was one of the DUSO League's greatest basketball players pointed up the case beyond that of an ordinary student. Laskowitz's eligibility, according to the state rules, has never been questioned by any writer.

• On Big Names and the Bo Draw:

Joe Williams, the astute World-Telly columnist, shattered many beautiful illusions in a recent article in which he said Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio were greatly over-rated as boxoffice attractions.

In effect, said —Williams (the writer) let either the Yankees or Red Sox take the lead in the pennant chase and by July both DiMag and Ted will have been forgotten. That's how it is with Gus H. Fan. He'll trade the pinup boys for a winner any day in the week and twice at the Sunday doubleheaders.

Mr. Williams could be half right and half wrong.

As a Yankee rooter since the days of Babe Ruth, then Lou Gehrig and Joe Di, this observer finds no passionate disposition to embrace the Yankees in 1952, even if they are pennant contenders. It could be stirred by an occasional sight of Yogi Berra (Fred Davi's friend) or Vic Raschi or maybe Phil Rizzuto. But with Ruth, Gehrig, now DiMag, out of the picture the enchantment surrounding the Yankees has evaporated. If we see them at all, it will be by sheer force of habit.

Statistics out of Pittsburgh challenge Joe Williams' stand. Pirates drew 1,800,000 paid admissions in 1948; 1,600,000 in 1949 and 1,200,000 coughed up to see them run dead last in 1950. Attendance slumped to 984,000 for the seventh-place windup last season, but the over-all figures are remarkable for the performance.

"Almost entirely due to Ralph Kiner," says Manager Billy Meyer. When the Buccaneers were hopelessly beaten the fans wouldn't think of walking out if Kiner, the home run king, had one more time at bat. Baseball is strictly a team game, of course," says the veteran Meyer, "but the clubs with the name players get the crowds and the more important money. The road attendances prove that."

It has been that way since Babe Ruth. Kiner and Musial are the only great ones left and Stan the Man never inspired the turnstile trade like Williams or DiMag. The Giants could move into the "big name" picture with Monte Irvin and Bobby Thomson in 1952.

But the Yankees without DiMag and the Red Sox without Williams. They'll never be the same, Mr. Williams.

Kentucky Regains No. 1 Cage Rating

Cats Nose out Kansas State and Illinois

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—Kentucky climbed into the No. 1 spot in the weekly Associated Press basketball poll today—but the Wildcats had only narrow margins over Kansas State and Illinois.

Adolph Rupp's Bluegrass quintet totaled 790 points to 755 for Kansas State and 745 for third place Illinois. These three were far out front. Fourth-place Kansas had 523 points and fifth-place St. Bonaventure, one of the two major undefeated teams left, had 457.

Kentucky, which was on top in two of the first three polls of the season, lured 32 first-place votes from the nation's sports writers and sports casters. Each first-place vote counted 10 points, second place nine, and so on down the line.

Rounding out the first ten, in order, were St. Louis, Duquesne (the other undefeated team with a 12-0 mark), Iowa, Washington and West Virginia.

The most impressive jump was made by Kansas State, which was seventh a week ago. The K-Staters Saturday hung the first defeat of the season on Kansas, which had been in the No. 1 or 2 spot for four straight weeks. The Jayhawks, incidentally, got only one first place vote.

The first ten took a real scrambling. In fact, the only school to hold the same spot it held a week ago was St. Bonaventure, No. 5. Illinois, on top of the heap last week, also tasted its first defeat Saturday.

Duquesne, which jumped from the No. 10 position, made its record 12-0 last night by whipping Villanova, 83-61. The Illini (12-1) trounced Purdue, 84-57, and Kentucky (15-2) defeated Vanderbilt, 88-51, in the only games involving first ten teams.

Seton Hall jumped to the chief threatening spot this week, holding down the No. 11 post, which was given up by Holy Cross, now No. 17.

Past Record Against Duquesne's Bid For Undefeated Basketball Season

New York, Jan. 29 (AP) — Duquesne, one of the nation's two unbeaten college basketball teams, is bucking a stiff jinx in its bid for a perfect record.

Over the past five years, Duquesne teams have started the season with juicy winning streaks, only to see them smashed.

Just look at this:

Last year, the Dukes won their first 10 games—then a 12-point loss to Cincinnati.

The year before that it was 16 straight before Louisville stepped in.

And in the three years before that, the Dukes started out with win streaks of six, 12 and 13 games but each time their dreams of that hardwood rarity—an undefeated season—were shattered.

On their form last night they might go all the way this time. They whipped Villanova, 83-61, and held the Wildcats' big scorer, Larry Hennessey, to one point. Hennessey had averaged 22 points a game.

Bonnies Are Obstacle

The only stumbling block here seems to be St. Bonaventure, the nation's other undefeated team. The Bonnies, like Duquesne, have racked up 12 straight wins. They meet Feb. 11.

Incidentally, these winning streaks have impressed the nation's sports writers and sportscasters, who gave both teams high rankings in this week's Associated Press poll. St. Bonaventure was placed fifth, while Duquesne was ranked seventh.

The No. 1 team, Kentucky, also saw action last night, whipping Vanderbilt, 88-51. Cliff Hagan scored 27 points as the Wildcats won their 15th game in 17 starts.

Beverly Port Rolls 288-654 for New Marks in Women's Major League

Solo Is Pin Under All-Time Record Set by Sue Heins

Pounds Alleys 7 and 8, Scores 180-288-186

Rocket-throwing Beverly Port joined female bowling's Hall of Fame last night with a sensational 288 single and 654 triple in the Women's Major League at the Bowlodrome.

The 288 was a pin short of the all-time city record of 289 held by Sue Heins and shattered the seasonal high of 267 set last week by Betty Bruck.

Mrs. Port's 654 marked the first time she had ever rolled better than "600" in league competition. Her best previous high was 598. Her top single until last night was 265.

A pair of misses hobbled her to 180 in the first game, before she began to blister alleys 7 and 8. She was tapped on a slightly high hit, leaving the 6-pin, in the first frame. Then came a string of 10 consecutive strikes before she left the 8-10 (pocket split) on her last ball. She had 186 with two splits in the third game.

The big series elevated her into the "170" average class, from 168 to 172.33 for 36 games.

R. Schatzel Hits 604

Rose Schatzel, who is belting the maples at a 195 plus clip, padded her average with a 604 series on games of 215-183-206.

A half dozen other keglerettes zoomed over the "500" mark.

Betty Schoonmaker just missed the "600" circle with 188-186-223—597; Charlotte Lapine fired 518; Marge Jansen 515; Ada Markle 216—511; and Rita LaRocca 535.

The Jones Dairy quartet, assisted by Beverly's big blast, came up with two new team records of 802 and 2176.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

DUSO League sports writers, including this one, who commented editorially on the circumstances surrounding Bob Laskowitz's stay in Fallsburg, while his parents have set up residence elsewhere, have been thoroughly castigated by Leon J. Weiss, superintendent, and Louis Blumberg, principal, of Fallsburg Central School.

Messrs. Weiss and Blumberg said in effect that the observations of the writers were a "scurrilous and malicious attack upon the ethics and conduct of the administration of the school athletics program," as well as being a "snide and unjustified" attack on Bob Laskowitz, personally.

The learned gentlemen point out that Robert Laskowitz has been registered in "our school system since September, 1949. Prior to that time his schooling had been in several different schools. When his parents found it necessary to move from our area, they were quite concerned about shifting Robert in his last year of school to a new situation. His mother came to Mr. Blumberg, our principal, discussed his remaining in the district under proper supervision and in a good home. Mrs. Laskowitz determined that the best place he could find was with one of our teachers."

"This particular procedure of parents leaving their children here to finish their high school careers is not unique in this instance," the letter continues. "Last year we had three such cases and one of these three was an athlete; the other was not. Therefore, we think that the insinuations in your articles are without foundation."

Since their letter was eminently fair, we presume that Messrs. Weiss and Blumberg will agree that in a free society such as ours, a difference of opinion should not be discouraged. In the eyes of the working press, the fact that Laskowitz was one of the DUSO League's greatest basketball players pointed up the case beyond that of an ordinary student. Laskowitz's eligibility, according to the state rules, has never been questioned by any writer.

• On Big Names and the Bo Draw:

Joe Williams, the astute World-Telly columnist, shattered many beautiful illusions in a recent article in which he said Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio were greatly over-rated as boxoffice attractions.

In effect, said —Williams (the writer) let either the Yankees or Red Sox take the lead in the pennant chase and by July both DiMag and Ted will have been forgotten. That's how it is with Gus H. Fan. He'll trade the pinup boys for a winner any day in the week and twice at the Sunday doubleheaders.

Mr. Williams could be half right and half wrong.

As a Yankee rooter since the days of Babe Ruth, then Lou Gehrig and Joe Di, this observer finds no passionate disposition to embrace the Yankees in 1952, even if they are pennant contenders. It could be stirred by an occasional sight of Yogi Berra (Fred Davi's friend) or Vic Raschi or maybe Phil Rizzuto. But with Ruth, Gehrig, now DiMag, out of the picture the enchantment surrounding the Yankees has evaporated. If we see them at all, it will be by sheer force of habit.

Statistics out of Pittsburgh challenge Joe Williams' stand. Pirates drew 1,800,000 paid admissions in 1948; 1,600,000 in 1949 and 1,200,000 coughed up to see them run dead last in 1950. Attendance slumped to 984,000 for the seventh-place windup last season, but the over-all figures are remarkable for the performance.

"Almost entirely due to Ralph Kiner," says Manager Billy Meyer. When the Buccaneers were hopelessly beaten the fans wouldn't think of walking out if Kiner, the home run king, had one more time at bat. Baseball is strictly a team game, of course," says the veteran Meyer, "but the clubs with the name players get the crowds and the more important money. The road attendances prove that."

It has been that way since Babe Ruth. Kiner and Musial are the only great ones left and Stan the Man never inspired the turnstile trade like Williams or DiMag. The Giants could move into the "big name" picture with Monte Irvin and Bobby Thomson in 1952.

But the Yankees without DiMag and the Red Sox without Williams. They'll never be the same, Mr. Williams.

The year before that it was 16 straight before Louisville stepped in.

And in the three years before that, the Dukes started out with win streaks of six, 12 and 13 games but each time their dreams of that hardwood rarity—an undefeated season—were shattered.

On their form last night they might go all the way this time. They whipped Villanova, 83-61, and held the Wildcats' big scorer, Larry Hennessey, to one point. Hennessey had averaged 22 points a game.

Jim Kennedy, a six-foot senior, led the Duquesne onslaught with a 28-point barrage. He connected on 13 of 17 field goal attempts.

Bonnies Are Obstacle

The only stumbling block here seems to be St. Bonaventure, the nation's other undefeated team. The Bonnies, like Duquesne, have racked up 12 straight wins. They meet Feb. 11.

Incidentally, these winning streaks have impressed the nation's sports writers and sportscasters, who gave both teams high rankings in this week's Associated Press poll. St. Bonaventure was placed fifth, while Duquesne was ranked seventh.

The No. 1 team, Kentucky, also saw action last night, whipping Vanderbilt, 88-51. Cliff Hagan scored 27 points as the Wildcats won their 15th game in 17 starts.

Cats Nose out Kansas State and Illinois

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—Kentucky climbed into the No. 1 spot in the weekly Associated Press basketball poll today—but the Wildcats had only narrow margins over Kansas State and Illinois.

Adolph Rupp's Bluegrass quintet totaled 790 points to 755 for Kansas State and 745 for third place Illinois. These three were far out front. Fourth-place Kansas had 523 points and fifth-place St. Bonaventure, one of the two major undefeated teams left, had 457.

Kentucky, which was on top in two of the first three polls of the season, lured 32 first-place votes from the nation's sports writers and sports casters. Each first-place vote counted 10 points, second place nine, and so on down the line.

Rounding out the first ten, in order, were St. Louis, Duquesne (the other undefeated team with a 12-0 mark), Iowa, Washington and West Virginia.

The most impressive jump was made by Kansas State, which was seventh a week ago. The K-Staters Saturday hung the first defeat of the season on Kansas, which had been in the No. 1 or 2 spot for four straight weeks. The Jayhawks, incidentally, got only one first place vote.

The first ten took a real scrambling. In fact, the only school to hold the same spot it held a week ago was St. Bonaventure, No. 5. Illinois, on top of the heap last week, also tasted its first defeat Saturday.

Duquesne, which jumped from the No. 10 position, made its record 12-0 last night by whipping Villanova, 83-61. The Illini (12-1) trounced Purdue, 84-57, and Kentucky (15-2) defeated Vanderbilt, 88-51, in the only games involving first ten teams.

Seton Hall jumped to the chief threatening spot this week, holding down the No. 11 post, which was given up by Holy Cross, now No. 17.

Joe Walcott, 'Working for God,' Blasts Christenberry for Ultimatum on Title

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion Jersey Joe Walcott today was biding his time waiting for some reaction from the New York State Athletic Commission after bluntly stating that "I wouldn't care if Bob Christenberry (commission chairman) takes it away from me."

Obviously irked at the "fight or else" ultimatum from Christenberry, Walcott said last night that what "I have been doing is more important than satisfying boxing commissioners. I've tried to impress on kids sincerity and faith in God."

Christenberry has ordered Walcott to sign for a defense of his crown by Feb. 5 or be stripped of it.

"If I'm not a credit to boxing, then he can have my title," Walcott said.

Sought Extension

"I asked for an extension when I won it. I wanted a full year. I need money and I haven't made $15 since I beat Ezzard Charles. But I made a promise. I promised God if he saw fit to make me a champion I'd work with kids.

"I have six kids of my own. I came from a family of ten children. I know the temptations kids have. If more guys were willing to take time out and not think about themselves this country would be better. But everyone is too greedy.

"I'm satisfied if I never fight again. I haven't been able to spend four consecutive hours at home with my family because I've been going places trying to help people. If they are going to persecute me for that then I'm satisfied. If that's what they call putting the title in a freeze then it's in a freeze."

Reynolds Named Professional of Year

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—For the second time in as many years, a member of the New York Yankees has won the Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year award.

Pitcher Allie (double no-hit) Reynolds was named the winner of the award yesterday. He received a $10,000 diamond-studded belt at the annual dinner of the Rochester Press and Radio Club. Yankee shortstop Phil Rizzuto was the winner in 1951.

Reynolds beat out heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott, 142 points to 130. In the coast-to-coast ballotting by a group of sports writers. Points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis. Both Reynolds and Walcott received 25 first-place nominations. Golfer Ben Hogan was third, with 21 first-place votes and 119 points.

Mikan and Wanzer Top NBA Shooters

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—George Mikan of Minneapolis and little Bobby Wanzer of Rochester dominate the National Basketball Association in two scoring departments.

Mikan enjoys a commanding lead in the individual scoring parade while Wanzer is setting a hot pace in the free-throw department.

Big George has collected 1,052 points, an average of 25 per game. Paul Arizin of Philadelphia is a distant second with 940 points. Mikan has attempted more field goals than any other player, 1,005. Figures released today, include games of Sunday, Jan. 27.

Wanzer leads in free throw percentage with a mark of 91.2 per cent. The Royals' sharpshooter has connected on 239 of 262 charity attempts. If Wanzer continues that pace he will surpass the professional record of 85.9, established by Bob Ferrick of Washington in 1949.

Other leaders are: Field goal percentage, Ed Macauley, Boston, 44.9; rebounds, Dolph Schayes, Syracuse, 591, and assists, Andy Phillip, Philadelphia, 300.

Mangrum Choice In Tucson Open

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 29 (AP)—Two preliminaries to the $10,000 Tucson Open golf tournament get under way here today.

A field of 155 of the game's lesser known players will tee off in an 18-hole qualifying battle for the 60 odd places still available in the meet.

And the first section of the annual pro-amateur tourney will tour the flat 6402 yard par 70 El Rio Country Club layout where the tourney proper will start Thursday.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, who has won the first meet and its $2,000 top money twice before, is a favorite to finish in the No. 1 spot again. He won the Phoenix Open Sunday.

NBA Head Applauds Squeeze on Joe

Paterson, N. J., Jan. 29 (AP)—The National Boxing Association last night applauded Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, for bearing down on Jersey Joe Walcott and once again invited New York to work with the NBA.

The NBA said New York's willingness to force champions to defend their titles within six-month periods makes a "united front" possible. The NBA statement was made by Commissioner Abe Greene in conjunction with association president Dave Rochon and executive secretary Harvey Miller.

Greene also advocated making contenders meet the same obligations as champs to avoid jockeying for position.

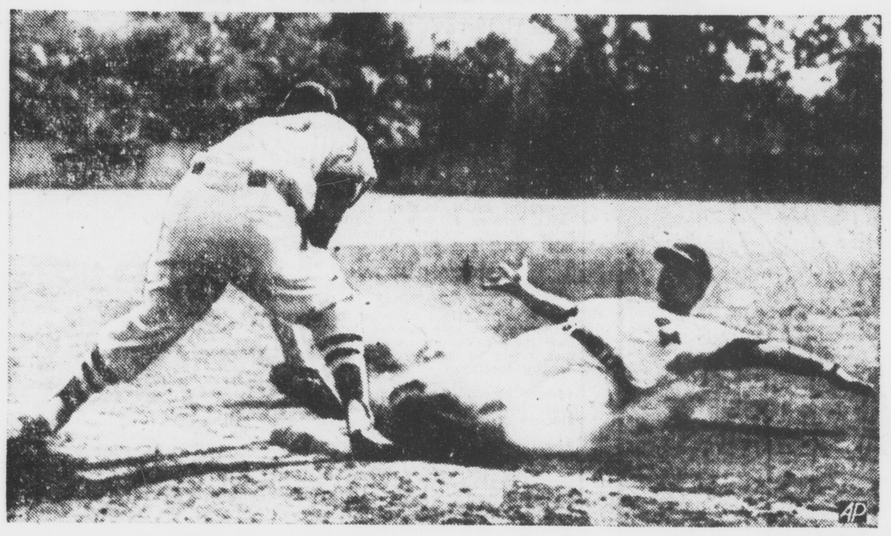

"Unless New York works in concert with NBA," Greene said, "a Rocky Graziano will be able to pick his opponents, once, twice, three times a year and then work his way into a title match."

He called it "futile" for two agencies to set separate dates for title defenses. "In the overlapping period, the status of champions would be in a state of confusion," he explained.

Germans Compete In Olympic Hockey

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 29 (AP)—Germany will participate in the Olympic ice hockey games at Oslo next month but the sextet will operate "under wraps."

Dr. Karl Ritter Von Halt, president of the West German Olympic Committee, announced yesterday that a 15-man squad would journey to Oslo. Dr. Van Halt said an earlier decision to skip the ice hockey tournament was reversed after he had been assured by the team captain that "nothing would happen."

Willy Daum, a committee spokesman said members of the team would be instructed to avoid incidents.

Meanwhile, at Arosa, Switzerland, the U. S. Olympic hockey team fought the Swiss champion Arosa team to a 6-6 tie. The Americans overcame a 5-3 deficit in the third period.

The Swiss tied the score at 6-6 with only two minutes to go but the Americans protested the goal and at one time threatened to skate off the ice. The Americans claimed that the equalizing goal by A. Thellwiss was illegal because the Swiss batted it in while his stick was above shoulder height.

At St. Anto, Austria, the U. S. Olympic women's ski team was cut to six members—the maximum number allowed for any nation.

Alexander Thanks Borrowed Courage

Philadelphia, Jan. 29 (AP)—Stewart (Skip) Alexander thanked "borrowed courage" and the marvels of modern medicine for the privilege of being alive to receive the Philadelphia sportswriters accolade as "Most Courageous Athlete of 1951."

Alexander, who fought his way back to the golfing tournament trail after 17 major operations for injuries suffered in a plane crash, was honored last night at the 48th annual writers' dinner. Also feted with roast beef and trophies were Princeton's great halfback, Dick Kazmaier, the "Athlete of the Year," and Bob Ward, Maryland tackle, "The Lineman of the Year."

His face lined with scars and his fingers, which once controlled some of golf's best shotmaking, still bent and bruised, Alexander told some 1,300 diners that he owed part of his recovery to letters and telegrams of encouragement from people all over the nation. "It was sort of borrowed courage," he said.

Alexander was injured Sept. 24, 1950, shortly after he had finished sixth in the Kansas City Open. He was trying to get home to see his family in Lexington, N. C., before embarking on an exhibition tour to South America and the West Indies. The Civil Air Patrol offered to fly him to Louisville. The CAP plane crashed near Evansville, Ind., airport killing three CAP officers. Alexander, although severely burned, crawled from the wreckage.

Alexander now is pro at Lakewood Country Club, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Reserve Clause To Stay on Books

Philadelphia, Jan. 29 (AP)—Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D.-Colo) believes the Celler Committee which investigated organized baseball probably would uphold the game's reserve clause and recommend establishment of a board of appeals.

Johnson told the 48th annual Philadelphia sportswriters' dinner last night that he had spoken to members of the committee and believed they would make their reports sometime in March.

The committee appears ready to recommend establishment of the appeals board which would settle any contract dispute between organized baseball and the players," he said.

Johnson said he hoped the committee headed by Rep. Emmanuel Celler (R.-N.Y.) had its last hearing. "I was really worried about that committee for a while," said Johnson, who also is president of the Western Baseball League. I understand they were thinking of recommending five major leagues at one time and they also were thinking of abolishing the reserve clause that baseball needs badly. But I'm happy to report they couldn't get a unanimous vote on those issues and so decided against them."

Johnson said the committee was going to issue a report which it will call the Bible or encyclopedia of baseball."

Joe Walcott, 'Working for God,' Blasts Christenberry for Ultimatum on Title

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion Jersey Joe Walcott today was biding his time waiting for some reaction from the New York State Athletic Commission after bluntly stating that "I wouldn't care it Bob Christenberry (commission chairman) takes it away from me."

Obviously irked at the "fight or else" ultimatum from Christenberry, Walcott said last night that what "I have been doing is more important than satisfying boxing commissioners. I've tried to impress on kids sincerity and faith in God."

Christenberry has ordered Walcott to sign for a defense of his crown by Feb. 5 or be stripped of it.

"If I'm not a credit to boxing, then he can have my title," Walcott said.

Sought Extension

"I asked for an extension when I won it. I wanted a full year. I need money and I haven't made $15 since I beat Ezzard Charles. But I made a promise. I promised God if he saw fit to make me a champion I'd work with kids.

"I have six kids of my own. I came from a family of ten children. I know the temptations kids have. If more guys were willing to take time out and not think about themselves this country would be better. But everyone is too greedy.

"I'm satisfied if I never fight again. I haven't been able to spend four consecutive hours at home with my family because I've been going places trying to help people. If they are going to persecute me for that then I'm satisfied. If that's what they call putting the title in a freeze then it's in a freeze."

Reynolds Named Professional of Year

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—For the second time in as many years, a member of the New York Yankees has won the Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year award.

Pitcher Allie (double no-hit) Reynolds was named the winner of the award yesterday. He received a $10,000 diamond-studded belt at the annual dinner of the Rochester Press and Radio Club. Yankee shortstop Phil Rizzuto was the winner in 1951.

Reynolds beat out heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott, 142 points to 130. In the coast-to-coast ballotting by a group of sports writers. Points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis. Both Reynolds and Walcott received 25 first-place nominations. Golfer Ben Hogan was third, with 21 first-place votes and 119 points.

Mikan and Wanzer Top NBA Shooters

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—George Mikan of Minneapolis and little Bobby Wanzer of Rochester dominate the National Basketball Association in two scoring departments.

Mikan enjoys a commanding lead in the individual scoring parade while Wanzer is setting a hot pace in the free-throw department.

Big George has collected 1,052 points, an average of 25 per game. Paul Arizin of Philadelphia is a distant second with 940 points. Mikan has attempted more field goals than any other player, 1,005. Figures released today, include games of Sunday, Jan. 27.

Wanzer leads in free throw percentage with a mark of 91.2 per cent. The Royals' sharpshooter has connected on 239 of 262 charity attempts. If Wanzer continues that pace he will surpass the professional record of 85.9, established by Bob Ferrick of Washington in 1949.

Other leaders are: Field goal percentage, Ed Macauley, Boston, 44.9; rebounds, Dolph Schayes, Syracuse, 591, and assists, Andy Phillip, Philadelphia, 300.

Mangrum Choice In Tucson Open

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 29 (AP)—Two preliminaries to the $10,000 Tucson Open golf tournament get under way here today.

A field of 155 of the game's lesser known players will tee off in an 18-hole qualifying battle for the 60 odd places still available in the meet.

And the first section of the annual pro-amateur tourney will tour the flat 6,402 yard par 70 El Rio Country Club layout where the tourney proper will start Thursday.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, who has won the first meet and its $2,000 top money twice before, is a favorite to finish in the No. 1 spot again. He won the Phoenix Open Sunday.

NBA Head Applauds Squeeze on Joe

Paterson, N. J., Jan. 29 (AP)—The National Boxing Association last night applauded Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, for bearing down on Jersey Joe Walcott and once again invited New York to work with the NBA.

The NBA said New York's willingness to force champions to defend their titles within six-month periods makes a "united front" possible. The NBA statement was made by Commissioner Abe Greene in conjunction with association president Dave Rochon and executive secretary Harvey Miller.

Greene also advocated making contenders meet the same obligations as champs to avoid jockeying for position.

"Unless New York works in concert with NBA," Greene said, "a Rocky Graziano will be able to pick his opponents, once, twice, three times a year and then work his way into a title match."

He called it "futile" for two agencies to set separate dates for title defenses. "In the overlapping period, the status of champions would be in a state of confusion," he explained.

New Goal

Sanford, Fla., Jan. 29 (AP)—Channel swimmer Florence Chadwick starts two weeks training here today for an attempt to swim the 42-miles across the Straits of Gibraltar in June. Miss Chadwick, former San Diego, Calif., secretary, is the only woman to swim the English Channel both ways.

Germans Compete In Olympic Hockey

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 29 (AP)—Germany will participate in the Olympic ice hockey games at Oslo next month but the sextet will operate "under wraps."

Dr. Karl Ritter Von Halt, president of the West German Olympic Committee, announced yesterday that a 15-man squad would journey to Oslo. Dr. Van Halt said an earlier decision to skip the ice hockey tournament was reversed after he had been assured by the team captain that "nothing would happen."

Willy Daum, a committee spokesman said members of the team would be instructed to avoid incidents.

Meanwhile, at Arosa, Switzerland, the U. S. Olympic hockey team fought the Swiss champion Arosa team to a 6-6 tie. The Americans overcame a 5-3 deficit in the third period.

The Swiss tied the score at 6-6 with only two minutes to go but the Americans protested the goal and at one time threatened to skate off the ice. The Americans claimed that the equalizing goal by A. Thellwiss was illegal because the Swiss batted it in while his stick was above shoulder height.

At St. Anto, Austria, the U. S. Olympic women's ski team was cut to six members—the maximum number allowed for any nation.

Alexander Thanks Borrowed Courage

Philadelphia, Jan. 29 (AP)—Stewart (Skip) Alexander thanked "borrowed courage" and the marvels of modern medicine for the privilege of being alive to receive the Philadelphia sportswriters accolade as "Most Courageous Athlete of 1951."

Alexander, who fought his way back to the golfing tournament trail after 17 major operations for injuries suffered in a plane crash, was honored last night at the 48th annual writers' dinner. Also feted with roast beef and trophies were Princeton's great halfback, Dick Kazmaier, the "Athlete of the Year," and Bob Ward, Maryland tackle, "The Lineman of the Year."

His face lined with scars and his fingers, which once controlled some of golf's best shotmaking, still bent and bruised, Alexander told some 1,300 diners that he owed part of his recovery to letters and telegrams of encouragement from people all over the nation. "It was sort of borrowed courage," he said.

Alexander was injured Sept. 24, 1950, shortly after he had finished sixth in the Kansas City Open. He was trying to get home to see his family in Lexington, N. C., before embarking on an exhibition tour to South America and the West Indies. The Civil Air Patrol offered to fly him to Louisville. The CAP plane crashed near Evansville, Ind., airport killing three CAP officers. Alexander, although severely burned, crawled from the wreckage.

Alexander now is pro at Lakewood Country Club, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Fire Damages Stores In Bronx Neighborhood

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—A two-alarm fire did heavy damage to three shops in a one-story building at 219th street and White Plains road, the Bronx, early today.

Battalion Chief Edward Cunningham said the fire was caused by a coal stove in the rear of a shoe repair and hat cleaning establishment at 3849 White Plains road.

The stove burned through the floor and fell to the cellar, he said, and the flames spread to the roof and to a furniture store at numbers 3841-3845, and then to a drugstore at number 3851.

The fire was discovered at 1:28 a. m. when accumulated gases broke a plate-glass window of the drugstore.

Nobody was in the building at the time of the fire.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER.

Sometimes material for this column comes through many channels. Harry L. Edson, of the Recreation Dept. just handed me an item cut from the Catskill Daily Mail, which was given to him by Bob Browning for me. It seems the late William Davis operated a grocery store in the building now occupied by the Thelma Shop at Bridge and Main streets in Catskill. William Carl, the plumber up there, found an old yellowed grocery store ledger dated May 1879. He brought it to the newspaper office and they reprinted parts of it.

It may interest some folks that eggs back in 1879 were 13 cents a dozen. A pound of sugar was nine cents. Butter was 20 cents. Cheese was 14 cents a pound. A pound of flour was four cents. Good tea in those days was 10 cents a pound. That was before tea-bag days too. Incidentally I have been looking for the old fashioned tea-bags of several years ago, which didn't melt in the cup like the modern paper ones do and flood the tea powder in the cup. I finally found one concern, which still concerns themselves that their consumers can enjoy a good cup of tea without the bag floating away in the cup and emptying the contents the minute boiling water strikes it. In fact, it can be used several times and still remain intact, really remarkable in this modern age of 1952.

Coffee back in 1879 was 35 cents a pound. Bread was eight cents a loaf. Lettuce by the head used to cost nine cents, of course that was in the month of May. Rice was 10 cents a pound. I think that in the 1920's groceries were even cheaper. I remember delicious sliced ham you could get in Weber's for 10 cents a quarter of a pound. Cheese was also 10 cents or less which we used to buy at Walters down on Broadway or Tongue's grocery on corner Mill and Broadway. Pork and lamb chops, the best, the ones with all meat and just a little marrow bone in the center were about five cents at Weber's Meat Market at Broadway and Abeel. For 25 cents I used to come home with five or six. And when my father sent me for hamburg I walked into Weber's across the street, and told Eddie from what choice big chunks of red juicy meat I wanted it. It was all meat, no fat, unless I asked for it. That was about 25 cents a pound then. You could eat it raw and enjoy it. If I keep this up I'll work myself into an old fashioned appetite, and that is too costly today.

Who said the "newspaper of today is the shelf paper of tomorrow." Anyway it is interesting to run across a local old paper any date. I have the Freeman of Monday evening, October 31, 1949 and just glanced at the Mohican advertisment of that date. Pork chops were 43 cents a pound. Hamburg steak was 49 cents a pound. Pies were 29 each. Also, from time to time, I hear folks ask, "what happened to that handsome white-haired Stettinius?" This paper announces his death. He was only 49, he had been suffering from a heart condition, was found by his family unconscious in bed that morning. At 37 he was Board Chairman of U. S. Steel Corp. He was this country's first U. N. delegate. He went to Yalta with Roosevelt. At 44 he became the second youngest Secretary of State in American history.

Fish, Game Club Elects Officers

Woodstock, Jan. 29—A regular meeting of the Woodstock Fish and Game Club was held at the town clerk's office at 8 p. m., Thursday, Jan. 24. During the meeting the following officers were elected for the coming year: Birge Simmons, president; Montcena DeWitt, vice president; Chester Wolven, secretary; John Peper, treasurer.

It was emphasized that the object of the club is to conserve and protect the fish and game of the country, and to encourage the true spirit of sportsmanship. During the past year the Woodstock Fish and Game Club has stocked the number of streams in the town with 3,250 brown trout; 1,780 brook trout and 1,100 rainbow trout. They have also released a number of pheasants in several sections of the town.

With many activities planned for the coming year, the club extends an invitation to all sportsmen in the area to become members and to aid in the work being done.

The club has decided to have a junior membership for 14 to 16 year olds, with dues at 50 cents a year. This entitles junior members to attend meetings, to join in the run and receive the educational advantages of the club. Both junior or regular memberships may be obtained from the following members: Ben DeGraff, Fred Ledogar, Fred Tripicco, Grant Elwyn. Fire Damages Stores In Bronx Neighborhood

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—A two-alarm fire did heavy damage to three shops in a one-story building at 219th street and White Plains road, the Bronx, early today.

Battalion Chief Edward Cunningham said the fire was caused by a coal stove in the rear of a shoe repair and hat cleaning establishment at 3849 White Plains road.

The stove burned through the floor and fell to the cellar, he said, and the flames spread to the roof and to a furniture store at numbers 3841-3845, and then to a drugstore at number 3851.

The fire was discovered at 1:28 a. m. when accumulated gases broke a plate-glass window of the drugstore.

Nobody was in the building at the time of the fire.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER.

Sometimes material for this column comes through many channels. Harry L. Edson, of the Recreation Dept. just handed me an item cut from the Catskill Daily Mail, which was given to him by Bob Browning for me. It seems the late William Davis operated a grocery store in the building now occupied by the Thelma Shop at Bridge and Main streets in Catskill. William Carl, the plumber up there, found an old yellowed grocery store ledger dated May 1879. He brought it to the newspaper office and they reprinted parts of it.

It may interest some folks that eggs back in 1879 were 13 cents a dozen. A pound of sugar was nine cents. Butter was 20 cents. Cheese was 14 cents a pound. A pound of flour was four cents. Good tea in those days was 10 cents a pound. That was before tea-bag days too. Incidentally I have been looking for the old fashioned tea-bags of several years ago, which didn't melt in the cup like the modern paper ones do and flood the tea powder in the cup. I finally found one concern, which still concerns themselves that their consumers can enjoy a good cup of tea without the bag floating away in the cup and emptying the contents the minute boiling water strikes it. In fact, it can be used several times and still remain intact, really remarkable in this modern age of 1952.

Coffee back in 1879 was 35 cents a pound. Bread was eight cents a loaf. Lettuce by the head used to cost nine cents, of course that was in the month of May. Rice was 10 cents a pound. I think that in the 1920's groceries were even cheaper. I remember delicious sliced ham you could get in Weber's for 10 cents a quarter of a pound. Cheese was also 10 cents or less which we used to buy at Walters down on Broadway or Tongue's grocery on corner Mill and Broadway. Pork and lamb chops, the best, the ones with all meat and just a little marrow bone in the center were about five cents at Weber's Meat Market at Broadway and Abeel. For 25 cents I used to come home with five or six. And when my father sent me for hamburg I walked into Weber's across the street, and told Eddie from what choice big chunks of red juicy meat I wanted it. It was all meat, no fat, unless I asked for it. That was about 25 cents a pound then. You could eat it raw and enjoy it. If I keep this up I'll work myself into an old fashioned appetite, and that is too costly today.

Who said the "newspaper of today is the shelf paper of tomorrow." Anyway it is interesting to run across a local old paper any date. I have the Freeman of Monday evening, October 31, 1949 and just glanced at the Mohican advertisment of that date. Pork chops were 43 cents a pound. Hamburg steak was 49 cents a pound. Pies were 29 each. Also, from time to time, I hear folks ask, "what happened to that handsome white-haired Stettinius?" This paper announces his death. He was only 49, he had been suffering from a heart condition, was found by his family unconscious in bed that morning. At 37 he was Board Chairman of U. S. Steel Corp. He was this country's first U. N. delegate. He went to Yalta with Roosevelt. At 44 he became the second youngest Secretary of State in American history.

Bitter Weather

reach at cities westward toward the Mississippi river.

Authorities said hardships from the weather were not pronounced at Marietta a few hours ahead of the 44-foot crest that is rolling down from Wheeling, W. Va., on a schedule which should bring it here by noon or before.

Streets Are Flooded

Marietta members of the 166th Infantry, Company F, Ohio National Guard, patroled flooded downtown and residential streets to prevent looting. The guardsmen used rowboats.

The only places in this river city where heating gas was shut off were evacuated buildings and the 100 block of Green street.

The river stood at 43.6 feet early this morning and rose less than one-tenth of a foot an hour. Flood stage is 35 feet.

Snow flurries swirled over flood-plagued Ohio during the night and earlier today. The mercury stood well below freezing.

This caused the Scioto river to crest at Chillicothe 12 hours ahead of schedule at 26.75 feet. Rivermen had predicted 28 feet.

The Hocking river crested last night at Athens at 18.3 feet, about eight inches under the anticipated crest, and then began falling.

Scores of Ohio roads still were inundated, however.

Adds to Misery

The cold weather added to general misery in the flood area.

Many persons who had planned to stay in upper floors of their homes were forced to evacuate for lack of heat. Water froze in gas pipes and basements.

An estimated 30,000 workers couldn't get to their jobs. Production losses are expected to run into hundreds of thousands of dollars, although the plants themselves were not hard hit.

Areas where the flood hit the worst were the area from Steubenville, O., south to Wellsburg, W. Va., where more than 2,000 fled their homes; Wheeling, W. Va., where 2,000 more were chased out and Marietta, O., where another 1,000 were being evacuated.

The river crested yesterday at East Liverpool, O., some 40 miles northwest of Pittsburgh, Pa., and 30 miles downstream at Steubenville. The crest measured nearly 44 feet late yesterday at Bellaire, O., across the river from Wheeling, W. Va., another 30-odd miles down river.

Army personnel, state national guard units, the Red Cross and other rescue crews helped in the relief in the heavily-hit districts.

Contract Is Awarded

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP) — The navy let a contract today for the first of a new line of rocket ships designed for close support of beachhead attacks. The award went to the Puget Sound Bridge and Dredging Co., of Seattle, Wash. Rapid fire rocket launchers will be the main armament of these ships, which will be constructed to operate in shallow water close to landing beaches. The mission of these vessels will be to saturate a landing area with high explosive rockets.

Transfers Are Asked

Heidelberg, Germany, Jan. 29 (AP)—American soldiers serving in Europe are volunteering in increasing numbers for duty in Korea. U. S. military headquarters here reported today that on one day alone 75 applications had been received from infantrymen in Germany for transfer to the Korean front. To go to Korea, volunteers must have at least 15 months unserved on their present tour of foreign service.

Report Japanese Make Munitions For United States

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—State Department officials said today Japanese industry has long been turning out munitions for the American occupation forces.

They made this statement when asked about a story in the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri saying that Japan, while pledging under its constitution to outlaw war, has resumed making munitions and has plans for building tanks.

The department officials said orders for arms and military supplies, from Japanese industry, were stepped after the fighting broke out in Korea.

The Tokyo story said 30 workshops have delivered 300 million small anti-personnel bombs and one of Japan's biggest companies has been asked to submit estimates for the assembly of 20-and 40-ton tanks.

Firm Claims Men Taken Off Project

Los Angeles, Jan. 29 (AP)—Plumbers earned as much as $756 for a week's work and laborers frequently were paid $250 a week at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site, according to testimony at an AEC hearing.

The hearing yesterday was on a petition by the McNeil Contracting Co. for reinstatement of its canceled $661,000 contract for work on the site.

The AEC said the contract was canceled because the firm ignored an order to work overtime and on Sundays and holidays.

McNeil attorneys said the company was able to complete only 80 per cent of the job by deadline because Haddock-Engineers Inc., "pirated" McNeil labor after getting a 2½ million dollar cost-plus contract at the site.

George N. Breslin, McNeil's counsel, said Haddock was able to pay plumbers as high as $756 weekly and laborers $250 weekly, while lump sum contractors were able to pay only normal wages.

The boat, 120 by 33 by 10 feet, was built for the army under navy supervision and is designated BC-6191. The christening was to be by Arlene Margolis, 111 Wurts street.

Moran Trial Adjourned

New York, Jan. 29 (AP) — The conspiracy-extortion trial of James J. Moran, former first deputy fire commissioner, was adjourned today because the judge is ill. Tokyo, Wednesday, Jan. 30 (AP) — The Peiping radio today charged that an allied plane violated the neutral zone of Panmunjom Friday by flying over the conference town. It was the first public announcement from either side of such an incident. The Peiping radio quoted a dispatch from Panmunjom saying the Communists brought up the matter at a meeting of liaison officers Tuesday. It said that the allies had promised to investigate.

Christenberry Is

isfied" with his progress so far in his program to reform the fight game in New York. He said a comparison with past records "justified" his satisfaction with his efforts to date.

Christenberry appeared before the Senate Finance Committee amid Democratic demands for the outlawing of the sport, which they describe as a racket dominated by hoodlums. But the Democrats were expected to vote to confirm Christenberry.

The Senate Finance Committee was expected to recommend confirmation by the GOP-controlled Senate. Dewey, in appointing Christenberry last fall to succeed Eddie Eagan, directed him to clean up the sport.

Despite the slippery conditions of the highways, no other accidents causing injury were reported by state police or the sheriff's office.

Report Japanese Make Munitions For United States

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—State Department officials said today Japanese industry has long been turning out munitions for the American occupation forces.

They made this statement when asked about a story in the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri saying that Japan, while pledging under its constitution to outlaw war, has resumed making munitions and has plans for building tanks.

The department officials said orders for arms and military supplies, from Japanese industry, were stepped after the fighting broke out in Korea.

The Tokyo story said 30 workshops have delivered 300 million small anti-personnel bombs and one of Japan's biggest companies has been asked to submit estimates for the assembly of 20-and 40-ton tanks.

Firm Claims Men Taken Off Project

Los Angeles, Jan. 29 (AP)—Plumbers earned as much as $756 for a week's work and laborers frequently were paid $250 a week at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site, according to testimony at an AEC hearing.

The hearing yesterday was on a petition by the McNeil Contracting Co. for reinstatement of its canceled $661,000 contract for work on the site.

The AEC said the contract was canceled because the firm ignored an order to work overtime and on Sundays and holidays.

McNeil attorneys said the company was able to complete only 80 per cent of the job by deadline because Haddock-Engineers Inc., "pirated" McNeil labor after getting a 2½ million dollar cost-plus contract at the site.

George N. Breslin, McNeil's counsel, said Haddock was able to pay plumbers as high as $756 weekly and laborers $250 weekly, while lump sum contractors were able to pay only normal wages.
